Blackwell, Kirkpatrick Wrangle Over Petitions

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state, said today no one had an opportunity at any time to tamper with petitions calling for a referendum election on the embattled state income tax increase.

In a two-page statement, Kirkpatrick said "the petitions have been closely supervised and safeguarded by members of our staff at all times since they have been in our possession. There has been no opportunity at any time for anyone to tamper with the petitions."

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, the man who headed the petition drive, charged Monday 642 petition forms were missing, including No. 1 on which his signature appeared.

"It's incredible," he said, "that the governor and his lackeys would go this far to keep the people from voting."

Blackwell accused Rep. E. J. Cantrell, House Appropriations chairman, of being the governor's "lackey who was low enough" to take some of the petitions.

And he said Kirkpatrick used "very bad judgment" in allowing Cantrell and his aides to examine the petitions before they were counted.

Cantrell was not available for comment today. His legislative assistant said he was expected in the Capitol Wednesday.

Kirkpatrick countered that the law specifies "the governor and members of either house of the General Assembly, or committees thereof, shall have free access to his (secretary of state's) office for the inspection and examination of all books, records and proceedings."

The secretary of state said he certified to Blackwell there were 3,150 petitions. They were given serial numbers by his staff at the time they were received and the numbers are still intact, Kirkpatrick said.

"I am at a loss to understand Senator Blackwell's statement in view of the fact this office has certified there were enough signatures from seven of the 10 congressional districts to meet the requirements to put the issue on the ballot for a vote by the people," Kirkpatrick said.

Blackwell returned to Jefferson City Monday apparently for the first time since leaving unexpectedly Jan. 20.

He was present at the opening of the special session of the legislature on Jan. 19 and as president pro tem of the Senate blocked nearly day-long efforts to oust him from office.

The controversial senator, at odds with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for over a year, was in the capitol early the following day but was later reported to have left the area in his private plane.

Opponents quickly moved to depose Blackwell, naming Sen. J.F. Patterson, D - Caruthersville, to succeed him .

Blackwell spent Monday afternoon with three secretaries checking numbers on each of the referendum petitions on file in the Secretary of State's office.

Then, at a much delayed news conference, Blackwell charged that 642 of the petitions are missing from Secy. James C. Kirkpatrick's office, including No. 1 which he said bore his signature and had been notarized.

Blackwell said he could not prove who took the petitions but charged Kirkpatrick with bad judgment in allowing Rep. E.J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, into his office to examine the petitions.

Cantrell and his group hope to block the referendum in a court action and are checking signatures on petitions in the 10th Congressional District of southeast Missouri.

The referendum is now set to go to the voters April 7.

Senate Committee Closes Hearings on Court Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee closed its hearings today on the nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court over the protest of civil rights spokesmen who said he should be recalled as a witness to explain his "segregationist" record.

The committee recessed, possibly to vote on President Nixon's nomination, following a 2½-hour detailed attack on the rulings and private actions of the Georgia-born appeals court judge.

"If Judge Carswell were worthy of the Supreme Court he would demand to come back," said labor lawyer Joseph L. Rauh Jr., who spoke for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

Rauh appealed to the committee not to approve "someone worse" in wake of the Senate's rejection of the prior nominee for the seat, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.

"Judge Carswell is Judge Haynsworth with a cutting edge," Rauh said, "with a bitterness and a meanness that Judge Haynsworth never had."

Rauh told the committee that nothing in Carswell's record indicates he has really repudiated a white supremacy speech he made 22 years ago.

The hearings concluded on a bitter note when Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., presiding at that juncture, pounded out of order Dr. Jo-Ann E. Gardner, a spokesman for Focus on Equal Employment for Women.

Ervin said the committee had agreed it would recess following testimony by Rauh and by Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington bureau of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people.

Rauh told the committee it was "an open secret" that the Justice Department knows of cases in which Carswell has opposed individual rights. Rauh cited 15 decisions by Carswell in which he was reversed unanimously by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans.

Rauh said other witnesses for civil rights, Jewish, women and Japanese-American groups stood ready to testify. "Can you really close this out today?" he asked.

The answer came quickly when Ervin recessed the committee and police officers instantly ordered witnesses, newsmen and spectators to exit at once.

Similarly, Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the NAACP and legislative chairman of the leadership conference, said "There is nothing to show that in the long period of his public life between 1948 and the present that the judge has rejected, retracted or reformed with respect to his 1948 views."

Carswell has said he now denounces the 1948 statements as abhorrent to him.

Rauh and Mitchell were the last two scheduled witnesses before the committee was to go into closed session to consider Carswell's nomination, submitted by President Nixon on Jan. 19.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said, however, he did not expect

County Budget For '70 Is Set at $556,409.39

A $556,409.39 operating budget was approved for Pettis County by the three county judges Tuesday. The 1970 budget is almost $43,000 higher than the 1969 figure.

All but three of the county offices received the amount asked for in the budget requests, filed Jan. 15. The recorder of deeds, public administrator and superintendent of schools were cut a total of $3,368 from their requests.

A breakdown of the county offices and their appropriations for the coming year:

County Court, $16,390; county clerk $30,387.50; treasurer, $10,035; collector, $20,380; assessor, $18,120; circuit judge, $2,083.50; court reporter, $5,457.25; recorder of deeds, $6,597; Magistrate court, $3,295; probate court, $21,391; prosecuting attorney, $18,177.50.

Sheriff, $62,956; coroner, $2,820; public administrator, $900.56; surveyor, $504; superintendent of schools, $8,945.80; county medical investigator, $2,920; health nurse, $17,563; superintendent of public welfare, $13,770; juvenile officer, $7,333.74; University of Missouri Extension office, $21,940.

In addition, the budget called for $177,366.16 to be appropriated for the county road and bridge fund and $38,829.31 for the emergency fund.

Two county offices showed a

Flat Creek, Kaysinger In Budget

President Nixon's budget contains $18,000 for an Army Corps of Engineers study of flood control along the Flat Creek basin. This is $3,000 more than was appropriated in fiscal year 1970 for the study.

Word on the Flat Creek recommendation was reported by Missouri's congressional delegation, which has also revealed that the President's budget includes $10 million for work on Kaysinger Bluff Reservoir. That figure represents $500,000 more than was appropriated in fiscal year 1970, but $10 million less than was sought by the Corps of Engineers.

If a flood control reservoir is found to be feasible by the Corps of Engineers, it would be built about 5 miles south of Sedalia. It would also provide water for the city, if desired, as well as serving as a recreational area.

The Flat Creek flood control study was adopted in 1965, following resolutions by Sen.

Bertrand Russell Dies In Wales at Age of 97

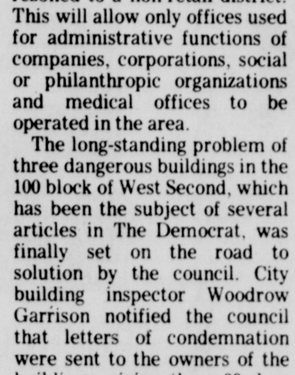
PENRHYDEUDRAETH, Wales (AP) — Britain today mourned philosopher Bertrand Russell, one of the great minds of the 20th century and one of its most controversial figures.

Lord Russell died Monday night at his home in North Wales. He was 97.

A spokesman said Russell's fourth wife, Edith, was with him when he collapsed. He reportedly had been suffering from influenza.

The Times of London said "Bertrand Russell's claim to be remembered by history rests securely on his work in mathematical and symbolic logic and in philosophy on which his influence was pervasive and profound."

In recent years Russell, a lean man with sharp bird-like features and a stock of white hair, was in the vanguard of the militant opposition to nuclear armament and U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.



Bertrand Russell

Author of more than 60 books, Russell won the Nobel prize for literature in 1950 and was a member of the British Order of Merit, restricted to 24 members at any time. He was the third Earl Russell and the grandson of a British prime minister, the first earl.

Few men prompted such extreme feelings as Russell did. He was reviled as a crank because of his antiwar views. Others regarded him as a sage. His conversation was dry and crackled with a biting wit that never lost its edge.

In his autobiography published just before his 95th birthday, Russell wrote: "Three passions, simple but overwhelmingly strong, have governed my life: the longing for love, the search for knowledge and unbearable pity for the suffering

Agree on Easement To the Duke Plant

An apparent agreement has been reached in a last-minute dispute between landowner E. W. Thompson and the Duke Manufacturing Co. which had thrown a temporary snag in Duke's plans to establish an industrial plant in Sedalia.

"There's no problem," Thompson told The Democrat Tuesday. "We've just agreed on the location of the sewer easements and they can go ahead with construction."

Mayor Ralph Walker told the City Council Monday night that he had met with both parties Monday and that negotiations broke down when Thompson asked for an additional $2,500 to allow the Duke plant to run sewer lines across his property. The council was expecting to authorize the selling of $450,000 in industrial obligation bonds to finance the project.

"I can't stress enough how disappointed the Duke officials were," the mayor said. "They came down here expecting to sign the contract as originally agreed upon and were met with this. I was fearful they would give up on Sedalia."

"I never went back on a deal in my life," stated Thompson. "They wanted to build that sewer right through open country and I didn't agree with that."

A settlement was reached when Duke agreed to run their sewer line along the side of a proposed road through the area. Thompson said there would be no additional cost.

Bill Hall, industrial development director, called the original easement plan "the shortest route possible." He said the architects of the Duke project had decided on that location for the lines.

In related events, Thompson charged that "political pressure" prevented a council ruling on his request for rezoning of a 20-acre tract south

To Attempt Annexation Turnabout

The City Council Monday night gave city counselor Bob Fritz approval to apply new tactics in Sedalia's proposed annexation plan due to strenuous opposition to the old plan.

The new plans include filing six separate lawsuits instead of five, as previously planned. The new plan would split the annexation suit of the southernmost four plots of land into two suits instead of one.

The group opposing annexation is represented by attorney William F. Brown, who said that the new city tactics would not affect the

The northeast corner of the Pettis County Courthouse lawn was the scene of an attempted suicide during the noon hour Tuesday. Dan O. Whitesell, 89, 210½ East Second, was rushed to Bothwell Hospital for treatment of a self-inflicted laceration to the left side of his neck. Police said Whitesell used a paring knife in his suicide attempt. Dr. John Lamy was treating Whitesell in surgery at Democrat presstime Tuesday. His immediate condition was not known.

Council is Taking Action On Intersection Fixture

After numerous injuries and two fatalities at the traffic signal standard at Broadway and Grand, the City Council took action Monday night when they accepted a recommendation from W. H. Dill, outgoing district 4 highway engineer.

Dill recommended to the council that his department be allowed to install "rumble strips" on a trial basis in the painted island on the westbound approach at Grand Avenue. These raised devices on the pavement will cause a rumble when driven over, and alert the driver that he is in an area where he does not belong.

Dill said the work would be done early this spring, and hopefully will eliminate the necessity of building raised medians. Raised medians would tend to block the flow of traffic from side entrances.

In a zoning matter, the south side of East Sixth between Arlington and Garfield was rezoned to a non-retail district. This will allow only offices used for administrative functions of companies, corporations, social or philanthropic organizations and medical offices to be operated in the area.

The long-standing problem of three dangerous buildings in the 100 block of West Second, which has been the subject of several articles in The Democrat, was finally set on the road to solution by the council. City building inspector Woodrow Garrison notified the council that letters of condemnation were sent to the owners of the buildings, giving them 30 days to start demolition of the structures. None of the owners complied with the request and it was decided to hold a public meeting on the matter on March 12. The owners will have another 21 days after the meeting to demolish the buildings. If they fail to do this, the city will demolish them.

Bids on the proposed Duke Manufacturing Co. plant were read and turned over to the Industrial Development Commission for their recommendations. Bids were received from Borchers and Heimsoth Construction Co. for $323,200; Dean Construction Co., $306,900, and Tempel-Callison Co., $309,685.

Action Tapers Off as Tet Approaches

SAIGON (AP) — Half a dozen small Viet Cong attacks were reported in the Saigon area Monday night, and military action elsewhere in Vietnam tapered off as the Tet holidays approached.

The South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry announced that government forces would observe a 24-hour cease-fire for the lunar new year beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday. U.S. officials said American forces would go along. The Viet Cong had earlier announced a four-day cease-fire beginning at 7 a.m. Thursday.

The incidents reported during the night in the Saigon region included two attacks on government offices and the second ambush in a week of a U.S. convoy on South Vietnam's most traveled highway.

Rifle and rocket-grenade attacks on the government offices 11 miles northwest and 12 miles southwest of Saigon killed four Vietnamese and wounded 19 others, the government said.

One American military policeman and one Vietnamese civilian driver were wounded in the ambush 10 miles northwest of Saigon on Route 1. Damage was reported light. One Viet Cong soldier and a civilian said to be a Viet Cong sympathizer were killed. Sources said the Viet Cong soldier was carrying a weapon and the civilian had a pocket full of paper Viet Cong flags.

The convoy was carrying 200 cases of soft drinks to the U.S. Army headquarters at Long Binh. After the ambush, South Vietnamese troops were sent out in armored cars to chase the Viet Cong. Instead they grabbed the soft drinks and a field radio on an escort jeep and escaped back to the sanctuary of their camp.

In the city, a South Vietnamese demolition team defused a bomb planted in a tree stump near a restaurant. A Viet Cong flag was draped over the stump, and the bomb was set to go off when the flag was pulled away.

Half a dozen Viet Cong soldiers walked into a hamlet 10 miles north of Saigon, passed out propaganda leaflets, then stabbed to death a South Vietnamese marine home on leave.

Fewer than 20 rocket and mortar attacks were reported during the night, half as many as the previous night, and ground fighting was limited to small engagements after a weekend of the heaviest fighting in six months. Allied communiques reported 29 enemy and three Americans killed, seven Americans wounded and light South Vietnamese casualties.

A North Vietnamese communique accused the United States of sending 40 flights of fighter-bombers over North Vietnamese territory on Jan. 28, the day the United States reported an F105 and a rescue helicopter shot down inside North Vietnam near the Mu Gia Pass. The United States said American fighter-bombers attacked a SAM launching site which fired missiles at a U.S. reconnaissance plane and its escort.

Hanoi said F4 Phantoms and F105 jets dropped bombs and fired rockets into populated areas of Ha Tinh and Quang Binh provinces, adjacent to the Mu Gia Pass, "causing losses in lives and property to the local population."

The South Vietnamese government reported that the Viet Cong stepped up terrorist activities last week, killing 107 civilians, wounding 197 and kidnaping 42 in 176 attacks. This was a 30 per cent increase from the previous week, a spokesman said.

He added that in January there were 582 cases of terrorism in which 331 civilians were killed, 778 wounded and 252 kidnaped.

President Nguyen Van Thieu reduced the sentences of another 368 prisoners and ordered 55 to be freed. He has done this for a total of 1,300 prisoners so far for the Tet holiday. The government announcement did not say if any of those affected were political prisoners.

British Pictures Sweep 'Golden Globe' Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Anne of the Thousand Days," a tale of the tempestuous times of King Henry VIII, swept up the lion's share of the Golden Globe awards presented Monday night by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

Made in England, it was named best motion picture and its writers, Briget Boland and John Hale, won for best screen play.

The star, Genevieve Bujold, was named best actress, and its director, Charles Jarrott, took the prize for direction. Neither was present to accept the awards.

The crowd at the star-studded ceremonies at the Ambassador Hotel cheered loudest at the announcement of best actor—longtime favorite John Wayne for his performance in "True Grit."

The awards for best supporting actress and actor went to Goldie Hawn of television's "Laugh-In" for her role in "Cactus Flower," and veteran Gig Young for "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

The foreign journalists chose as the best English language foreign film the satirical British movie "Oh What a Lovely War." Their choice of best foreign language foreign film was the French-Algerian entry "Z."

Separate Golden Globes were given for musical or comedy films and their respective performers. In that category, the best picture was "The Secret of Santa Vittoria," best actress was Patty Duke in "Me, Natalie" and best actor Peter O'Toole for "Good-Bye Mr. Chips."

In the music department, awards went to Burt Bacharach for his score for "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," and Rod McKuen for "Jean," the title song from "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

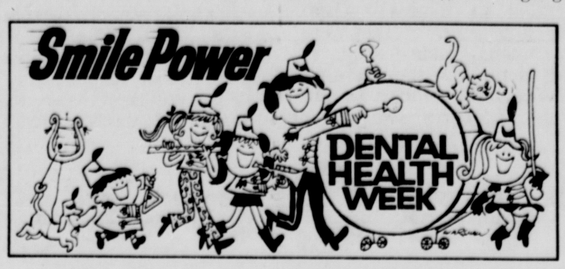
Most promising newcomers to the screen were Ali McGraw, star of "Goodbye Columbus," and John Voight, for his portrayal of the title role in "Midnight Cowboy."

A special recognition award —the Cecil B. DeMille Award— went to longtime screen favorite Joan Crawford.

In addition to recognizing individual achievements, the foreign press group named what they called world film favorites.

Barbra Streisand and Steve McQueen were the winners.

There were awards for television, too. They were: Best musical or comedy, "The Governor and J. J."; best drama, "Marcus Welby, M.D."; best comedy or musical actor, Dan Dailey for the "Governor and J. J."; best actress for comedy or musical—a tie—Carol Burnett and Julie Sommers of the "Governor and J. J."; and best dramatic actor and actress, Mike Connors of "Mannix" and Linda Cristal of "High Chaparral."



People In The News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon plans a tour of the Chicago-Indianapolis areas for a first hand view of conservation, reclamation and pollution control efforts.

Announcing this Monday, her press secretary, Constance Stuart, said "she wants to see for herself" what is being done.

No details of Mrs. Nixon's itinerary were made public.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Actor James Drury, featured in television's "The Virginian" as a fast man with a gun, has met his match in a gun slinger of another kind.

Police recovered $200 stolen from Drury's motel room over the weekend, but said a man questioned in the theft told them he flung a .38-caliber pistol which was part of his loot into a river.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Kim Darby and actor James Westmoreland plan to marry Friday, providing they can decide on a church.

A spokesman said Monday the couple's honeymoon plans also were indefinite.

Westmoreland, 34, appeared regularly on "The Monroes" television series and has had other TV roles and movie parts in this country and in Europe.

Miss Darby recently completed her fourth starring film assignment in "The Strawberry Statement." Earlier, the 23-year-old actress played opposite John Wayne in "True Grit."

Each has been married once previously. Miss Darby has an 18-month-old daughter, Heather, by her marriage to actor James Stacy.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Estelle Dillingham Donen, estranged wife of film producer Stanley Donen, admits she performs no service for his company but maintains she is entitled to a weekly salary.

She petitioned Superior Court for $560 a week from Stanley Donen, Inc., under a seven-year contract she said was signed Oct. 28, 1963.

She said her husband had ordered a weekly $200 cut to force her to accept what she termed an unfair divorce settlement.

Judge Richard Schauer denied the writ Monday but said Mrs. Donen could seek to recover any money she feels is due her after a full trial of her divorce suit which also asks $50,000 in punitive damages.

The Donens, married Sept. 30, 1960, now live separately in London.

Secret Missile Mission Called Great War Feat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secrecy surrounds it, but officers are saying privately one of the most successful Navy feats in Vietnam was a 1968 missile launch some admirals feared might undermine the Paris peace talks.

Involved, ironically, was the Navy's Talos Missile, one of a series of ship-to-air weapons highly criticized in Congress in recent years as unreliable.

The Navy turns aside all questions about the incident, but sources report Talos missiles destroyed two North Vietnamese MIG jets in May and June of 1968.

The shots occurred in a combat setting in the Gulf of Tonkin but actually were more of a staged test of Talos' capability than a battle action.

The ship that launched them was not under attack nor, officers believe, did the MIG's suspect they were being targeted.

Generally credited with having a 65-mile range, the Talos missiles knocked down the two enemy planes as they flew along North Vietnam at distances variously estimated by officers at 78 to as much as 110 miles.

Officers say the surprisingly distant range at which the missiles scored their kills was one reason the Navy brass did not wish to publicize the operation. Details of weapons' capabilities are routinely kept secret.

But the admirals, according to knowledgeable officers, also were afraid they might be accused of introduced a new weapon in Vietnam at the very time the bombing of the North had been curtailed and the Paris negotiations were getting under way.

They feared Hanoi might use the incident, the first time U.S. surface-to-air-missiles were used in Vietnam as an excuse for not talking.

The first MIG was struck as it flew out of Hanoi May 23, 1968.

Only a few weeks before, President Lyndon B. Johnson had gotten Hanoi to agree to negotiate by limiting the bombing of North Vietnam to that country's Southern Panhandle.

The second missile hit came in June, still in the early stages of the Paris peace talks.

The secrecy imposed during that period became set policy which the Navy refused to alter even after the negotiations turned out to be generally fruitless.

Sources say the Pacific Command, which calls the shots for the 7th Fleet off Vietnam, twice has turned down requests by information officers to release information on the operation.

Traffic Ticket Taken To Nation's High Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Makah Indians have done what many irate motorists frequently threaten but don't dare—take a traffic ticket to the Supreme Court.

The Makah Tribe is asking the court to declare that the state of Washington has no authority to enforce state traffic laws against members of the tribe for offenses committed on its reservation, located at the northwest tip of the Olympic Peninsula.

The tribe contends tribally and federally built roads on trust land of the reservation are not public highways.

The dispute started Feb. 15, 1964, when a deputy sheriff for Clallam County, Wash., arrested a tribe member for driving a car without a state driver's license on the main street of the reservation village of Neah Bay.

The Indian was tried and convicted in justice court, but while his case was on appeal to the county superior court, he died and the appeal was dismissed.

A second, similar incident occurred Jan. 25, 1965, when Douglas Coleman, another member of the Makah Tribe, was arrested in Neah Bay on the same charge.

The tribe asked the Superior Court of the State of Washington for a declaratory judgment, but the court ruled against the Indians on all counts, saying that reservation roads are public roads and that the state has jurisdiction over tribe members on them.

The Indians claim that state authority over reservation roads creates "state property interest in trust land on an Indian reservation without compensation to the Indians."

The tribe also claims that such an interpretation violates the Makahs' treaty with the federal government and "would severely restrict the federally protected tribal right to exclude non-Indians from the reservation."

The roads were built cooperatively by the tribe and the federal government under federal regulations requiring consent from the tribe or individual Indians on rights-of-way for construction.

Oklahomans Working On Financing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma House started work Monday on a bulky school finance code as the Senate was adopting a bill to raise maximum interest rates on public bonds from six to eight per cent.

The bond interest measure, which now goes to the House, would apply to all bonds issued by the State of Oklahoma, counties, cities, political subdivisions, public agencies and the Oklahoma Turnpike Authority.

Opponents argued it would add inflation and block the sale of bonds already authorized.

Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester, said "not a turnpike in Oklahoma can stand eight per cent interest" and added that cities and towns cannot afford the higher rate on their bonds.

Action on the 186-page school finance code taken up by the House Monday was deferred for section-by-section consideration.

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam has begun planting 1.5 million trees in a Hanoi suburb in memory of President Ho Chi Minh, the North Vietnamese News Agency said today.

It said the "tree planting festival" started this week along the banks of the Nhue River with about 2,000 persons taking part. The project is called the "Forest in Memory of Uncle Ho."

Doctor Murdered In Motel

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The trussed body of a 49-year-old physician from Sioux City, Iowa, was found in his room at a motel in suburban Overland Park, Kan., Monday.

Dr. George Rowney, a gynecologist, had been stabbed more than 20 times, apparently with an ice pick. A leather belt was pulled tightly around his neck and his feet were bound with an electrical appliance cord.

Rowney had checked in at the motel last Thursday to attend seminars and refresher courses at the University of Kansas Medical Center.

Police said he apparently had been dead several hours before the body was discovered at 3 p.m. by two maids who entered the room to clean.

Miss Maxine Vanyant, a maid, said she had opened the door earlier.

"I saw that someone was in bed with the covers pulled up over his head when I went into the room to clean about 11 o'clock," Miss Vanyant said. "When we came back in the afternoon I tried to wake him up and then I saw there was blood on the sheets and called the manager."

Police said robbery apparently was the motive, because Rowney's billfold was missing and his trouser pockets were turned inside out.

Metro Squad officers from several Johnson County police departments are helping with the investigation.

"The worst trouble with the future is that it seems to get there quicker than it used to." No time like the present to investigate the merits of a Spillman pre-need Mausoleum—a 'Future'—for your final resting place. See your Funeral Director.

Sex Potion Sounds Like Possibility

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone in this office was interested in the letter from the man who returned from Vietnam with an ancient aphrodisiac — powdered reindeer horns. We are well aware that phony sex potions have been around for centuries, but somehow this stuff, as described by the soldier, sounds like the real McCoy.

We live in Michigan. There are no reindeer up here. Would just plain deer horns be O.K.? Please advise. — F.L. and J.

Dear F.L. and J.: I am certain that plain deer horns would be just as effective as reindeer horns. If you can't locate deer horns, you might try goat horns, or fog horns, French horns or shoe horns. The results, I assure you, will be the same. Zero.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read your advice to "Pestered Louise." You said it is bad manners to drop in on people unexpectedly and that no one should be a sitting duck for anybody who knows how to ring the doorbell.

What is wrong with you that you don't like company? From your column one gets the impression you love people, but such statements as this make me wonder.

I'm tickled pink when someone drops in. I can think of no greater compliment. I'm not a fussbudget about my house. If it isn't neat as a pin, I don't care. I serve whatever is on hand and if I don't have anything to serve I say so.

Please change your advice. It doesn't sound like you. But then you hear from so many nutty people, maybe you are getting a little nutty yourself. — Kentucky Ella.

Dear Ella: Yes, I do hear from some nutty people, but every now and then I get a lovely letter from a charming person like you so it evens out. I did say it is inconsiderate to drop in unexpectedly and I meant it. People who are uninvited and unexpected are usually unwelcome. At least, that's the way I see it.

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done about a 45-year-old mother who thinks she is a teenager? Our 16-year-old daughter is getting more uncommunicative and angry by the day. I am sure her mother's behavior is at the bottom of it.

Our daughter Lottie has many friends, both boys and girls and they congregate at our place. The kids play table tennis, sing, turn on the hi-fi and dance by the hour. "Mom" loves to dance with the boys and they tell her she's out of sight. She is a great dancer and I think she is giving the girls more competition than she realizes.

I don't believe a woman in her 40's should be wearing mini skirts and kicking up her heels with her daughter's boyfriends. Mom insists she is chaperoning. I don't think teen-agers need that much chaperoning. Do you? — Scarsdale

Dear Scars: Parents should be under the roof when their teen-agers entertain, but they should not plant themselves in the middle of the action and act like part of the crowd.

A mother who is attractive and a good hoofer should turn down in the voltage around her daughter's friends. Without realizing it, she is competing with her daughter and creating trouble.

Health Program At P.T.A.

"Preventive Health Measures" were discussed by a panel representing the medical profession at the January meeting of the Mark Twain School P.T.A.

Dr. James Burkeholder, pediatrician, stressed the need for a pre-natal clinic, which he hopes to get underway next year. He remarked on the availability and necessity of the newer preventive vaccines already in use, such as those for measles, mumps, polio, and tetanus which supplement the earlier diptheria, small pox, and whooping cough inoculations. He emphasized particularly the three-day measles vaccine, and urged that fluorides should be a part of the water system used in the area.

Dr. Chester Kirkpatrick, optometrist, said not only the school-age child needs eye testing, but also the pre-schoolers should be tested as a preventive against amblyopia, or "lazy eye" disease, which can cause serious sight defects later in life. He also warned against watching television at too close a position, and added there should be a light on in the room with the set, when it is in use.

Dr. Gary Evert, a dentist, told the audience that oral cleanliness is the most important factor in preventing tooth decay.

Miss Diane Draisey, county health nurse, who moderated the panel, said students from all schools in her area had had tests for tuberculosis, and that of 5 per cent of new cases discovered, all were being followed up. She said that county health nurses offer home nursing care to those who need it.

Mrs. Fred Davis presided over the meeting, and announced that a book fair will be held in conjunction with the next P.T.A. meeting on Feb. 19, at which time "Founder's Day" will also be observed.

'Way Out' Classroom Popular

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Room 32 at Culver City High School is different. Candles burn. Incense fills the air. Some students recline in beach chairs. "In" pictures cover the walls.

"I was shocked," said Richard Marracino when he was called as a Friday substitute for the regular 12th grade social sciences instructor, Larry Borden.

"But then I was warned Borden had rather an unconventional class.

"I find now," said Marracino, "that I favor the informal atmosphere. The greater part of our learning is done informally, from our friends, acquaintances. I really enjoyed seeing the kids 'turned on.' It's not often you see this in school."

What some teachers call "the pad" was created Jan. 9 at student suggestion. Borden had been receptive and administrators were willing to go along. Up went the pictures—ranging from actor Paul Newman to rock-pop music groups.

Though the curriculum remains unchanged, some parents are markedly apprehensive. The students? It seems to be their bag.

Judie Rosenwirth: "Mr. Borden is in the position where he can plant the seeds and this room is our sunshine. He is our water and then he can watch us grow."

David Brooks: "We have better rapport with the teacher and the other students. It's an incentive to learn. It's not like you walk into a classroom and turn off."

Dr. Vincent Alexander, superintendent of schools: "I haven't visited the classroom as yet. But I plan to see it before making a comment."

Borden: "The rate of a student's desire to learn is commensurate with his desire to attend school, and a physiological sense of well-being is necessary for learning to take place."

The teacher has been given assurances the experiment will continue at least through the present term.

Room 32 isn't hard to find. The sign on the door says "Revolution."

Railroad Merger Routes

This newsmap charts the principle routes covered by the Great Northern Pacific & Burlington Lines Inc. — created by a merger of five western lines — which will give western states a 26,500 mile, single company rail system. The Supreme Court Monday affirmed an Interstate Commerce Commission approval to merge, made in 1968. The new system will operate in 17 states, including the northern section of Missouri. (UPI)

Blonde Uses Logic in Job Fight

MIAMI (AP) — Using feminine logic, a bright-eyed 16-year-old blonde who wants to be a congressional page is telling 435 members of Congress they shouldn't hold her sex against her because "some of the greatest people in the world started out as girls."

Wendy Green, a high school junior who started her campaign at the top and resorted to letters to every congressman after President Nixon sidestepped the issue, has licked stamps and envelopes for two days to further her cause.

Wendy is a slim, smiling Miami honor student who says she has wanted to be a page for a long time and won't stop her campaign until she gets a positive response.

Her letters begin:

"Dear Congressman: Wouldn't it be a shame if you wanted to join a country club but couldn't because it was restricted? It would be more than a shame . . . it would be illegal. It would be the same as it would be illegal to restrict girls from becoming pages in the United States Congress."

"I wrote them I was not afraid of hard work, and as for carrying heavy packages, well, I told them I will be only too glad to buy a shopping cart," she said.

Wendy first appealed to Nixon about a month ago, and received a reply last week.

Nixon's letter said in part, "The members of my own family long ago convinced me that women can bring exceptional talents as well as understanding to the business of government."

However, the President said he considered it inappropriate to comment on the policies of the Congress with respect to the employment of pages.

Since Wendy's first appeal, she said she had received hundreds of telephone calls and letters of encouragement, including one from a boy page who said he was all for her.

"A few of my friends at Killian High School have asked me why I was trying to get into the man's world," the teen-ager said. "I tell them it's not a man's world, and I told the representatives some of the greatest people in the world started out as girls."

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days and see for yourself.

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any weak hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

For more information, write Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., and if they believe the treatment will help you, they will advise how you can take advantage of this 32 day trial at a special introductory price with a money-back-guarantee. Just send them the information listed below.

Bail has been denied for Thornton, and he is being held in the Boone County Jail.

Russell

of mankind." But only the longing for love was fully satisfied, he wrote.

In 1902 one of his first most important works, "An Introduction to Mathematical Philosophy," was published. Russell spent the next eight years working with Alfred North Whitehead on "Principia Mathamatica," one of the great rationalist works that had a profound influence on the course of modern philosophy.

During World War I Russell went to prison for six months as a pacifist. After the war, Russell, a member of the Labor party, visited Russia, met Lenin and Trotsky and wrote a book, "The Practice and Theory of Bolshevism." He was one of the first intellectuals to warn of the dictatorial evils of Bolshevism.

Russell succeeded to the title as earl when his elder brother died in 1931. In that year he and his second wife Dora founded Beacon Hill School, an experiment in progressive education which had wide influence in Britain and the United States.

He lectured at American universities during the 1930s, was in disfavor for a time in 1940 because of a New York scandal, but soon was once more busy lecturing and finishing his "History of Western Philosophy," his most successful publication.

Despite his World War I commitment to pacifism, he supported the war against Hitler.

In the late 50s and early 60s, he was the leader of a campaign for nuclear disarmament. He steadily predicted annihilation of the human race unless man could throw away the atomic bomb.

"Like Cassandra, I am doomed to prophesy evil and not to be believed," he said. "Her prophecies came true. I desperately hope that mine will not."

Accident

The 700 block of South Ohio was the scene of a one car accident at 2:10 a.m. Monday.

Involved in the accident was a 1963 Buick, driven south on Ohio by Cecil George Lappat, 34, 922 East Sixth.

Damage resulted to the right-front and the right-rear of the vehicle.

Police Report

Safeway Manager George Moyer reported to Sedalia police at 2:04 p.m. Monday that he had apprehended a suspected shoplifter at the store.

Moyer reported to police that he had observed Charles B. Ford, 22, 601 West Seventh, placing several packages of cheese and meats under his coat. He went on to report that he approached Ford and removed the articles worth $4.32 from Ford's coat and held him until police arrived.

Ford was released from police custody on $50 bond. His court date is set at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

a break-in at the Sportsman Club No. 1, 119 North Broadway, was discovered by police on routine patrol early Tuesday morning.

Chuck Brown, owner, told police the break-in occurred sometime in the past six days. Two tables and eight chairs were reported missing.

Fires In The City

Firemen were called to 112 East Cooper at 3:21 p.m. Monday, where burning trash set fire to nearby grass. There was no damage.

of the Thompson Hills shopping center to allow construction of a Gibson's discount store.

"We were ready to start contruction today (Monday), but petty politics got into it and they wouldn't rule on the request," declared Thompson, who thought city leaders were holding up on the rezoning in order to induce him into an agreement with Duke.

Mayor Walker called Thompson's accusations "nonsense." He said the rezoning request was a routine matter and would probably be decided at the next council meeting. The mayor expected to call a special council session Thursday night to act on the bond issue, assuming there is no further difficulty between Duke and Thompson.

"We are darn anxious to get this project underway. We're very happy to have the company locate here in Sedalia," he said.

Losses By Fire In '69 in City Are Reported

The Sedalia Fire Department responded to 417 alarms last year, which resulted in nearly $600,000 in fire losses, according to a report submitted to the City Council Monday night by Fire Chief Emmett (Potts) Vaught.

The total fire loss for Sedalia last year was $606,840.42, including $7,558.08 in damages paid by insurance companies for fires in which the department was not called.

A total of $1,173,400 in fire insurance was carried on buildings and their contents in the city last year.

Of the 417 alarms answered, 102 were prompted by grass fires, 51 were false alarms, 45 were calls to vehicles or machinery which caught fire or might have caught fire, and 21 were the result of honest mistakes.

Only 23 fires of undetermined origin were answered by the department, with six of them being car fires. Firemen also responded to 14 calls to wash gasoline off the street.

Some of the more humane calls answered by firemen resulted from a pet monkey in a tree, a girl with a finger caught in a machine, a dog in a well, a man on a light pole at Centennial Park and four calls of cats in trees.

a vote today on the nomination. The Massachusetts Democrat declined to say whether he might invoke a committee rule allowing any member to force a week's postponement of a vote on the appointment.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said earlier he expected a favorable committee vote by a big margin at today's committee meeting. Carswell, 50, was nominated by Nixon after the Senate rejected the President's first choice of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. by a 55-45 vote last November.

Testimony Monday centered on what some lawyers called Carswell's hostile and insulting attitude toward civil rights lawyers.

"Judge Carswell is the most hostile federal district judge I've ever appeared before with respect to civil rights matters," said LeRoy D. Clark, an associate professor at the New York University law school. Clark was in charge of civil rights litigation in Florida for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund from 1962 to 1968.

Carswell, of Tallahassee, Fla., was a U.S. district court judge before being elevated to the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals last June by President Nixon. Kennedy asked Clark to give some details of Carswell's behavior in dealing with civil rights lawyers.

"Judge Carswell was insulting and hostile," testified Clark, a Negro. "On one occasion he turned his chair away from me when I was arguing a case. It was not unusual for Judge Carswell to shout at a black lawyer while using civil tones to white lawyers."

Annexation

strategy of his case. Those opposed to the annexation had planned to fight just one example of the proposed property, hoping a judgment in their favor could be used as a basis for halting annexation on the other areas as well.

In connection with the proposed annexation areas, the city ran into another snag in Circuit Court Monday, when lawyers for the defendants against the airport condemnation asked that a defendant be named to represent Boonville Road, which will be closed if the airport expansion work actually gets underway.

Fritz said Tuesday that he had not determined who would be named in the suit, the Pettis County Road District or the Special 12-Mile Road District.

Presiding Judge Henry Lamm of the Pettis County Court said the portion of Boonville Road in question falls under the jurisdiction of the 12-Mile Road District.

The case was continued to 1:30 p.m. March 9, and the city was given 10 days to file an amended petition naming a defendant to represent Boonville Road.

The planned closing of Boonville Road has been opposed by several residents of the area, who maintain they will be inconvenienced.

from the Courtesy Cab Co. requesting a license to operate in the city with three cabs. A public meeting will be held after the next regular council meeting to determine public need for another cab company in the city.

Liquor licenses were approved for Delbert Arnold, 302 West Main; the East End Tavern, Fifth and Engineer; the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., and the Old Missouri Homestead.

A request from Boy Scout Troop 57 to allow the troop to do a "good deed" for the city was given whole-hearted approval by the council. To allow members of the troop to obtain merit badges in citizenship, the city has agreed to let them paint yellow no-parking strips on city curbs. Each member of the troop must contribute 10 hours to the project to obtain his badge.

No-parking zones were approved for the west side of Olive from 11th to 14th, the north side of 11th from the east line of Limit to a point 200 feet east, and on the east side of Engineer from Third north to the M-K-T tracks.

Mercury vapor street lights were approved for installation at 2313 and 2721 South Kentucky.

Bids were accepted for approval on a new city dump truck. Bids will be advertised for trees to be removed from the site of the new sewage lagoon.

Routine bills approved for payment were: General and administrative, $1,758.01; airport, $212.80; fire, $312.91; police, $1,575.68; street and alley, $1,313.32; sanitation, $1,254.07; public buildings and grounds, $96.85; industrial development, $531.79; lights and water, $77.05; parking $112.43, for a total, plus bond accounts, of $9,401.00.

Return From Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon returned to the White House late Monday night after a three-day trip to Florida to be with her daughter, Tricia, who is ill with the measles.

Explains Education Headaches

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The chairman of the Higher Education Commission said today Missouri's colleges, universities and junior colleges must have an increase in state aid of at least 17 per cent next year to avert a crisis in higher education.

Chairman H. Lang Rogers of Joplin said the alternative to more state aid will be either "a decline in educational quality or diminished college opportunity for Missouri residents, or both.

"It will mean the loss of considerable momentum in higher educational development of the last several years. And once lost, such momentum takes many years to recapture."

Rogers, a Joplin newspaper publisher, issued the statement following Monday's meeting of the commission.

He said the public junior colleges, where an increase in enrollment of up to 20 per cent is expected next year, are especially in need of more help.

They are granted $320 in state aid for each student taking a full course, based on the preceding year's enrollment. But the enrollment increase will lower substantially that aid per student.

He said the junior colleges should concentrate even more on specialized occupational educational programs, to provide technical skills needed by students who are not qualified or desirous of an academic education such as colleges and universities provide.

Besides, such skills fill a particular need now in industry that is becoming more and more automated, eliminating many of the low-skill jobs of other times.

Unfortunately, Rogers said, the cost of providing vocational education is greater than for basically academic courses.

Rogers said after Monday's meeting "the commission reiterates the fact that the recommendations as set forth for the 1070-71 year do need to be met and can be justified.

Last Nov. 21, the commission recommended $137,964,965 be appropriated by the state to operate the universities and colleges, an increase of 17.2 per cent over this year.

SST Boosters Will Produce Noise; Uncertain of Other Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boosters of the supersonic transport concede only one point to their antipollution critics: The SST as presently designed will make more airport noise than any existing commercial jetliner.

But larger questions about SST-caused sonic boom and weather alterations still are hotly contested.

The nation may know better in a few weeks whether the 1,800-mile-an-hour, needle-nosed plane is indeed a serious threat to the environment. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, tentatively has scheduled hearings on the question before his Senate air and water pollution subcommittee.

It is doubtful that Muskie or other congressional critics can stop the SST project on environment-protection grounds alone.

For the venture is riding the political momentum of President Nixon's strong commitment of $1.3 billion for prototype development by 1973 and Congress' vote of $80 million in support this year.

Environmentalists indict the SST on two counts: Noise, both airport and sonic boom during flight; and possible weather alterations from water vapor and engine effluents dumped into the inert upper atmosphere.

The Federal Aviation Administration and its allies in Congress have long since dropped as futile any defense of sonic boom, the 25 to 50 mile wide carpet of thunder which trails the SST at speeds greater than sound.

And President Nixon largely defused boom critics by pledging to allow SST flights over populated areas at speeds slow enough to prevent a boom.

But some were not won over.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., condemns the booms that would be generated on transoceanic flights.

"If the sonic boom can cause damage on land, then it can cause damage at sea too," he says. "The shipping and fishing industry is not likely to accept the incessant disruptive booming without protest. And they by no means lack political clout."

The FAA, which administers the SST project, counters with studies showing the plane to be economically feasible without overland, supersonic flights.

The agency also says booms at sea are minimal because of counteracting ship noise and the cushioning effect of water.

No one has yet contended the booms would harm or even affect aquatic life.

Airport noise is more clear-cut, however. The SST, because of its giant engines, will be noisier on the ground than existing jets.

Says Boeing, the prime SST contractor: "The 'sideline' noise is still a problem. The FAA knows it, we know it and General Electric (the engine maker) knows it. And we are devoting intensive efforts on sound suppressive devices."

But the FAA argues over-all "community noise" will be less with the SST than existing jets because the plane is quieter once in the air and climbs more rapidly out of hearing range.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., is concerned the FAA may bend its noise standards to fit the shortcomings of the SST.

Unless successfully modified, the SST will greet people within one mile of a runway with a sound equivalent to that experienced by standing within 30 feet of a trailer truck moving at 60 miles an hour.

While no one disputes the airport noise problem, scientists are split over the SST's impact on weather.

Critics rely on the admittedly theoretical work of Dr. Vincent J. Schaefer, a weather expert at the State University of New York at Albany.

Schaefer asserts water vapor and effluents from the SST's engines would be injected into the upper atmosphere for the first time ever by a commercial airplane. The stratosphere, unlike the lower atmosphere, cleans itself of pollution quite slowly.

"A high concentration of very small particles in the stratosphere might cause such a reduction in the incoming solar radiation as to have a weather modification effect on a global scale," says Schaefer. Solar radiation heats the earth.

"If this were to happen a very large capital investment could be completely wasted since . . . it would lead to a new ice age," he maintains.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a friend of the SST, asserts that Schaefer "is disagreed with more than he is agreed with" in his field.

The FAA buttresses Goldwater's contention with a report from the National Academy of Sciences:

"Our tentative conclusion, based on an assumed traffic volume of four flights per day from 400 supersonic transport airplanes, is that neither additional cloudiness nor water vapor absorption of long-wave radiation will be sufficient to disturb appreciably either stratospheric properties or the large-scale circulations that are influenced by its thermodynamic state."

Federal meteorologists have further assured the FAA "that although an unequivocal answer cannot be offered, the general opinion of a large group of scientists almot unanimously rejects any significant threat to modification of the weather" from the SST.

The two favorable reports deal only with water vapor from the SST's engines and not other effluents. Schaefer asserts the pollutants would act as water vapor to block further beneficial solar radiation.

The plane's engines are rated 98 per cent efficient, eliminating any possibility of the black exhaust smoke now associated with some smaller jets. But emissions of gaseous pollutants such as carbon and nitrogen oxides are unavoidable.

Recently David Weissman, a Stanford University biologist, contended that SST exhausts will speed the breakdown in the stratosphere of a naturally occurring gas called ozone. Ozone helps shield the earth from harmful ultraviolet radiation.

The ozone destruction, Weissman said in a letter to Proxmire, "could, in major air routes, create a penetration 'window' in the atmosphere. This would result in all life under these windows being killed by the UV rays."

The FAA has not heard of Weissman's theory and can offer no refutation.

Claims Withdrawal Pace Will Level Off in 1971

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles E. Goodell said today he had learned the administration's withdrawal timetable envisions an American force of about 300,000 in Vietnam at the beginning of 1971, with "a very small troop reduction" under consideration for the following year.

The New York Republican, who did not disclose his source, said "The human and materiel costs of continuing so large a presence for so long are totally unacceptable."

Goodell's testimony, supporting his bill to force complete U.S. withdrawal over a one-year period, was prepared for the opening of Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on an assortment of 10 Vietnam policy resolutions.

The administration has kept secret its timetable for U.S. troop withdrawals as South Vietnamese forces are trained to take over combat duties. President Nixon has cut authorized troop strength by 115,500 since he took office, and is planning another manpower announcement in April. The currently authorized manpower level is about 434,000.

Because of the secrecy shielding future withdrawal plans, the budget Nixon sent Congress Monday did not disclose estimates of war spending for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said "it is safe to assume" that most or all of the $5.8 billion reduction in defense spending requested in this budget as against the last could be traced to cuts in the expected cost of the war.

Nixon's budget did note "We expect that further reductions can be made in the future "in U.S. troop levels.

Goodell, whose withdrawal bill already has been denounced as a "bug-out" at the White House, said administration strategy seeks to reduce U.S. casualties to a level "acceptable to American public opinion."

"The price of present policies will be anywhere from 5,000 to 20,000 Americans dead in the next three years," the senator said. "The price will be anywhere from $40 billion to $60 billion in that period."

Goodell was one of 10 senators due to testify during a two-day installment of hearings on Vietnam policy measures ranging from an endorsement of Nixon peace efforts, coupled with a call for cease-fire, to demands for hastened American withdrawal on a public timetable.

The Goodell proposal is a bill to impose a deadline by cutting off funds for the maintenance of U.S. forces in Vietnam after one year.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., asked committee endorsement for his proposal to repeal four foreign policy resolutions produced by past crises and authorizing U.S. military action. The Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, cited as a congressional charter for past U.S. escalation in Vietnam, was among them. Mathias said that resolution has "served its purpose all too well."

Goodell said an overwhelming majority of the South Vietnamese people want peace, but are governed by a military regime which wants war. "The people of Vietnam are truly the silenced majority," he said.

Advocates Force To Attain Freedom

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. Richard W. Bolling, D-Mo., says the United States should use armed force to maintain Israel's freedom.

"If Israel was attacked, I would favor direct intervention by sending troops," Bolling told a group at the Jewish Community Center Monday night.

"The solution to peace in the area lies in a great U.S. commitment which would result in the other powerful nations using their influence to gain peace," he said.

The Russians are a threat to peace in the Middle East, Bolling added.

"Russia supports those who would exterminate the only free and democratic government in the area," he said. "... It would be a great mistake to encourage people to believe that the cold war is over. This is not time for isolationism or neo-isolationism."

He said U.S. troop strength in Western Europe should not be reduced until Russia makes a reciprocal move.

At his cornation, Napolean I of France insisted upon taking the crown into his own hands and crowning himself.

Train Crash Casualties Soar in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government raised the death toll in Sunday's train crash to an estimated 236 Monday night, making the wreck the second worst railroad disaster in history.

"Our present figure is 236," said Dr. Ezequiel Holmberg, the secretary of public health. "It is an estimate because we are still working."

He said 110 injured persons were hospitalized.

The federal police had put the toll earlier at 160 dead, and the Interior Ministry had estimated 125 killed. But officials said Holmberg's announcement represented the official view of all the government agencies involved in rescue and salvage.

One rescue worker said many of the bodies were so badly mangled it was virtually impossible to make an accurate count.

Many of the injured were reported in critical condition.

Only about 100 bodies had been identified by relatives. The rest were brought from suburban General Pacheco to the Buenos Aires city morgue for identification, or for burial in unmarked graves if the bodies were too badly mangled for identification.

In some cases, whole families returning from a summer weekend in the countryside apparently were killed, and there was no one to make identification.

Several injured children were orphaned by the accident. Some of the injured were travelling with family or friends and did not know hours after the crash what had happened to them.

Two railroad signalmen are being held for questioning and a third railroad worker is being sought as authorities try to determine the cause of the accident.

A passenger express completing a 1,000-mile run from the northern city of San Miguel de Tucuman barreled at high speed into the rear of a stalled commuter train jammed with weekenders returning to Buenos Aires. Most of the dead and injured were aboard the commuter train.

Although the commuter train had been stalled for half an hour with mechanical trouble, the express apparently was not signaled to stop or slow down, officials said.

The worst train wreck in history occurred on Dec. 12, 1917, at Modane, France: a passenger train was derailed and 543 persons were killed.

Policymakers Open Communications

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen Princeton University students, bearing detailed suggestions instead of slogans, are experimenting with opening lines of communication between the campus set and Washington's foreign policymakers.

So far, so good, according to their leader Stephen Fuzesi Jr., who says they got a good hearing Monday from Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y.

Fuzesi, 21, of Hamden, Conn., says this effort "to re-establish a dialogue between students and our government" is not an attempt to undercut the student protest movement.

The young, he said, are going to have to accept more responsibility during the coming decade and they have a right to a say on developing policy.

In all, 20 Princeton students spent 14 weeks researching and developing policy recommendations which they are reviewing in their sessions with some senators, congressmen and Nixon administration leaders.

The experiment, Fuzesi said, is part of the students' program of school work concentrated toward careers in the public service field.

Fuzesi said the students are not here to disrupt the functions of government or to look around as part of a routine school visit to the city.

The students seek support for such proposals as ending nuclear proliferation immediately, stopping development of an antiballistic missile system, and withdrawing all American combat forces from Vietnam within a year.

Pope Risks Authority by Muzzling Demand for Celibacy End

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has put his authority at stake by trying to muzzle the growing demand within the Roman Catholic church for an end to the requirement that all priests be celibate.

Far from moving toward a softening of the mandatory rule for clerical celibacy that he restated in a 1967 encyclical, the Pope on Sunday told the world's half billion Roman Catholics they should not even discuss a change in the rule.

Celibacy, he said in a stern and uncompromising speech, "is a capital law of our Latin church. It cannot be abandoned or put into discussion."

The speech was a pointed rebuke to the primate of the Netherlands, Bernard Cardinal Alfrink, and the six other Dutch bishops who had called publicly for a churchwide discussion of priestly celibacy after a council of Dutch priests and laymen voted overwhelmingly that sexual abstinence should no longer be mandatory for priests.

The Belgian primate, Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens, joined the Dutch bishops in calling for debate on the issue.

Cardinal Alfrink announced on Jan. 19 that he would come to Rome "soon" to discuss the matter with the Pope. But the pontiff said his "no" without waiting to confer with the cardinal.

The Vatican is tensely waiting for the reaction of the Dutch bishops, for what one prelate called "the next round in the shadow boxing between Rome and Amsterdam."

The first reaction from Holland was restrained. The bishops met in Utrecht today and in a short statement afterward said they "did not have the impression that the papal speech was a reply to the worries they submitted to him." Prof. Edward Schillebeecky, the liberal Dominican theologian who is an adviser to Cardinal Alfrink, said in a radio interview Sunday night that the Pope's speech had made the position of the Dutch bishops more difficult. But he contended that the Pope spoke only of the spiritaul value of priestly celibacy and not of the church rule requiring it.

Many prelates think an open break between the Pope and the Dutch Catholic Church is a real possibility.

"Will the controversy between Rome and the church of Holland on the issue of celibacy end up in schism?" Rome's Il Messaggero asked today.

"Schism does not need to be proclaimed solemnly to become a reality in today's church," wrote Milan's Corriere della Sera last week.

Others recalled the recent speech in which the Pope said that "condemnation and excommunication" could still be necessary "when serious circumstances require it."

Priestly celibacy is a 1,600-year-old tradition of the Western Catholic Church. In the Eastern Church, married men can become priests.

In the 4th century married men were still allowed to become priests in Western Europe, but they were prohibited "the use of their marital rights," as the New American Catholic Encyclopedia puts it. Single men who became priests could not marry. In 1075 Pope Gregory VII excluded married priests from all ecclesiastical functions.

St. Paul the Apostle, who never married, favored clerical celibacy although he allowed for married priests and bishops. In one of his letters he said married men were too busy pleasing their wives and could hardly spare time to be at the service of God.

Many in the church think that St. Paul's idea still holds true.

Those who are against mandatory celibacy claim a celibate life deters many from becoming priests and causes serious psychological problems for today's priests. Most candidates for priesthood take on the lifelong bond of chastity when they are only 22 or 23.

Liberals point to the dropping rate of those choosing the priesthood and say that the trend might be reversed by scrapping the celibacy rule, especially in such areas as Latin America and Africa.

Pope Paul's solution thus far for those priests who cannot stand single life any longer has been "dispensation." Upon request, a priest can easily get a permit to marry in the church but on the condition that he gives up all priestly activity.

In 1962, the year before Paul VI became Pope, the Vatican granted 200 dispensations. In 1968, there were 1,017.

Drama of Human Life Like a Christmas Tree

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every period of human life is like a Christmas tree—it has its good side and its bad side.

This month, while the rest of America will be celebrating the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, I'll be figuratively lighting a birthday cake of my own, one lit by a bonfire of 59 candles.

"How many did you say, Harold—59? Why, you don't look a year over 58. And if you took off 30 or 35 pounds, you probably wouldn't look over 57."

Well, thanks everybody, thanks. There's nothing like a kind word to lift the human spirit.

Naturally, I suppose you all want to know how I feel about being 59. Well, I feel pretty much like the fellow in a story Abraham Lincoln used to like to tell.

This man had been tarred and feathered and ridden out of town by a group of citizens he had unintentionally offended. As he was plucking the tar and feathers off himself, one lone sympathizer asked him how he felt.

"Well," said the victim ruefully, "if it weren't for the prestige, I'd just as soon have skipped the whole experience."

Becoming 59 isn't so bad in itself. What makes it memorable is that it means you are entering your 60th year of life, and that does kind of pull a fellow up short.

There are certain birthdays that make a person want to lie down and cry. With a maiden lady it is her 30th; with a man it's his 40th. With a married woman it's the year in which her last child leaves home.

The beginning of one's 60th year is also a kind of personal landmark for anybody. To reverse a common figure of speech, it is a time when he can begin to see the darkness at the end of the tunnel.

It is a time when he first really realizes—and it comes with the blow of an inner thunderclap—that he will never do again as many things as he has done before. He doesn't have that many years left.

It is a time for stocktaking and inventory. Does he need an operation or some dental work done? Better do them now, while his company's health program will help pay the medical bills.

It is time for him to read the fine print in his life and accident insurance policies and see if there are any changes to be made.

It is time for him to study his pension program. If it looks inadequate, he'll have to quit hanging around pool halls and start saving more money.

It is time for him to consider giving up his worst bad habits; that is, if he can do so without his body dying from the surprise. After all, it is a considerable shock to the system to initiate reforms to it in its sixth decade.

It is time for him to get around to doing all the things he has postponed because he was too busy. For example, if he has always yearned to see Bali, now is the time to go. The girls there look better to a fellow on his feet at 59 than to one in a wheel chair at 70.

It is time, if he feels his Deity is dead or dying, to revive Him with a little heart-to-heart resuscitation.

Would you like to drink a toast with me on my 59th birthday? Thank you. By the way, make mine Geritol.

NBC Movie Ambitious Project

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Movie Murderer," another in NBC's "World Premiere" series of film features made for television, was an ambitious and intelligent effort to do something distinctive with a suspense story.

The two-hour Monday night program did not quite come off, mostly because the basic structure was not strong enough to support all the weight hung on it.

It started as the story of an old, shrewd and crotchety insurance investigator, played by Arthur Kennedy, who believed arson caused a series of fires in various places where motion picture film was stored. The story then turned to the professional arsonist and his adventures.

After that the hunter and hunted took turns dominating the screen. Sometimes they shared it—the film used a lot of split screen effects and other optical tricks.

The film paused to probe into the personal life of the arsonist and a subplot involved his romance with a boozy divorcee. The investigator's problems with his front office and his development of a young and apt pupil were also threaded into the story.

If all this was not enough peripheral characters were introduced for colorful grace notes—an underground film producer, an aging career girl and an assortment of dropouts and beadwearers.

But the film dragged painfully for long periods. Again and again we were shown how the master arsonist set his fire. The investigator scratched his head and wondered a lot why anyone would want to destroy reels of entertainment film. The answer, when it came was strictly story-book stuff.

Another film in the "World Premiere" series, the moving "My Sweet Charlie" starring Patty Duke and Al Freeman Jr., was the most popular program broadcast during the week ending Jan. 19 according to the Nielsen rating. NBC claimed it was the highest rated film feature shown in two years.

During the same week ABC's rerun of the film "Hombre" on a Sunday night won second place and pushed its competition, "Bonanza," down to 18th position. "Laugh-In" was third.

Of ABC's five midseason replacements, "The Johnny Cash Show" fared best, placing 16th. "The Nanny and the Professor" ranked 37th, and the other three were in the second half of the list of 79 programs.

NBC continued to top CBS in the Nielsen average ratings. The score was NBC, 22.1; CBS, 20.8, and ABC, 17.9.

Farm Roundup

Farmers' Interest Rates Continue Upward Spiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who paid $10 interest charges a decade ago shelled out an average of $33.70 last month, according to Agriculture Department economists.

And for every $10 in taxes paid in 1957-59, says the department, farmers had to dig up $22.90 in January 1970.

The department's monthly price report issued last week said that over-all farm expenses at mid-January averaged a record 383 per cent of the old 1910-14 average.

But the over-all figures, which include prices farmers pay for commodities and services as well, do not tell of the tremendous increase in taxes and interest over the years.

Interest rose to 616 per cent of the 1910-14 average by mid-January, and taxes to 1,167 per cent.

But the most pressing gains have been made in the past decade or so, with the hardest crunch occurring in the last year.

The gain made from December to January in the over-all index of prices farmers have to pay was 1.5 per cent, the largest monthly jump since January 1951, the Crop Reporting Board said.

"The major part of the current increase resulted from increasing annual tax and interest rates and seasonally adjusted farm wage rates, although commodities and services were also higher," the board said.

The average cost of interest jumped from $31.10 paid at mid-December last year to the $33.70 reported in January. A year earlier the average was $31.10, the same as in December, the report said.

Taxes jumped from $21.30 in December—compared with $10 a decade earlier—to $22.90 in January.

Average wages paid by farmers rose from $17.90 in December for every $10 paid in 1957-59 to $18.10 last month. A year earlier the average was $16.60.

Moreover, the farmer as a consumer felt the pressure in virtually every other way as inflation continued its effect on everyday items.

Cost figures of clothing, for example—as of mid-December, the most recent month tabulated—continued to climb. Men's overalls cost $5.34 each, compared with $5.25 in September 1969 and $4.99 in December 1968.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon budget for fiscal 1971 estimates government price support operations for major crops will increase $163 million from the current year ending June 30.

The budget for all outlays by the Commodity Credit Corp. for price support operations is for $3.704 billion, compared with $3.541 estimated for 1969-70.

However, the budget pointed the total will be less than the $4.1 billion costs of 1968-69.

The outlays include: wheat payments $904 million in fiscal 1971 and $832 million in 1970; feed grains $1.516 billion and $1.269 billion; and cotton $906 million and $817 million.

This does not include other commodity programs and adjustments for receipts and losses computed in the outlay estimate.

Chrysler Head Predicts Higher Company Ethics

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the 1970s, said the speaker, "the company with the reputation for seeking sales at the expense of public service and for building corporate profits at the expense of social progress will be rejected."

He continued: "The company that appears to have no conscience may be the company that winds up with no customers."

If those words had come from one of the growing number of consumer advocates it might have sounded like a threat that couldn't be fulfilled, like sour grapes or like energy expended on rhetoric instead of action.

The speaker, however, was John J. Riccardo, the new president of Chrysler Corp., fifth largest seller of industrial products in America, a company that occupies 100 million square feet of work space in 16 nations.

Automotive companies, it is safe to say, have been among those which the public has felt were most aggressive about sales and building corporate profits, and perhaps among the more negligent about environment and services.

That the need for change should be so clearly stated is good news for consumers, for a study might show the damage to human health from the irritation and frustration of seeking quality automotive service to be as great as that from some new virus.

Recognition of the automotive service problem was given recently by the National Better Business Bureau, which set up what it calls the BBB Hot Line to deliver complaints directly to Detroit.

The service, which also provides for the automotive firms to send BBB a disposition report on all such complaints, goes to the heart of the business establishment rather than to its fringe.

For many years, it appears, it was assumed by some consumer watchdogs that violations of agreements, poor quality and reneging on services were largely the work of itinerant peddlers, window salesmen and other doorbell ringers.

In setting up hotline, the BBB puts its finger on one of the chief reasons for the growing number of complaints when it states:

"In the automotive industry . . . the number of motor vehicles on the road increased 91 per cent between 1950 and 1966, but the number of mechanics increased only 21 per cent. This shortage of competent technical personnel has resulted in a heavy workload, particularly at dealerships."

Most critics would say the problem is more complex, but the spreading disparity between the numbers of mechanics and cars does indicate the problems facing automotive manufacturers in the next decade.

In seeking to expedite complaints, BBB hopes that complaints will be handled first at the local bureau and dealer level. If results cannot be obtained, the complaint then is referred to the national bureau.

The National Better Business Bureau then puts the problem directly before a high ranking corporate executive at American, Chrysler, Ford or General Motors, asks for action and requests a report on the action taken.

"The success of the program depends on the quality of the unresolved complaints referred to these top officials," BBB explains. "Only serious problems that cannot be settled at lower levels should be routed through this channel."

Early results have been good, and, viewed more broadly, the hot line does breach what some car owners have long thought was an impenetrable fortress. It is this, rather than the quanity of complaints, that appears to be important.

Texas Will Not Honor a Demand

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. Preston Smith will not honor Oklahoma's demand for the extradition of Frank Sawyer, 71, officials notified Oklahoma Gov. Dewey Bartlett Monday.

Oklahoma extradition papers say Sawyer was serving two life terms in Oklahoma on murder charges as well as a 99-year kidnaping sentence when he was released to Kansas to be tried on bank robbery charges in 1962.

Kansas pardoned him last Sept. 21 after another ex-convict, Alvin Karpis, confessed to the bank robbery.

Texas Sec. of State Martin Dies Jr. said the parole was not contingent of Sawyer being returned to Oklahoma and there was no statement that Sawyer had broken the terms of his parole.

Crossroads Comment...

The subject of contradictions between inattention and concentration occurred during an office discussion of attitudes of youngsters in the classroom and home.

A story was told about the boy who was so wrapped up in his own study of plants, animals, birds, insects, etc., that scarcely any other subject in school got his attention.

Shall study of the fundamentals of reading, writing and arithletic be required, or let the student make the choice of what interests him most?

It was agreed that without the basics then children who did not learn them, and otherwise become educated, would face extreme handicaps in life. Some may overcome these handicaps, but many may not.

A student's flair for specialization need not be discouraged unless he is ignoring all else. We remember some students in old Sedalia High school who were whizzes in almost every subject; others excelled in mathematics and despised English; an English student found chemistry obnoxious and so on. Later, most of them found niches in life, mathematics leading to accountancy, English to teaching and writing; chemistry, botany to medical and dental professions. Basics, however, were learned — seasoned with periodic stern discipline from teacher or parent whose status was often challenged by the youthful know-it-all. In the old days the obstinate ones at times encountered situations in which some sense was knocked into their heads or rear end.

We recall the time Miss Mattie Montgomery taught history in SHS and a few who turned up their noses at the subject. History! Who cares about what happened 2,000 years ago?

Well, to bring it up to date, let's look at the trend in this nation of people leaning on the federal government to underwrite the cost of so many projects right here in Central Missouri — housing, dams, missiles, you name it and a grant is attached; benefits from welfare to education. A centralized bureaucracy is replacing local responsibility.

What's that got to do with history? A lot can be visualized through history. Consider the fall of the Roman Empire. Self determination faded out, folks at the grass roots began to lean too much on the imperial politicians who channeled funds from the wealthy into welfare projects, public works, amusements and into the pockets of a top heavy bureaucracy.

Resources began to run dry, communities became insolvent, political interest died out and the whole burden of administration, defense, etc. fell upon this bureaucracy which was unequal to the task of survival. Energies of the empire collapsed.

Are we headed that way — history repeating again while we ignore the study of it and application of it to our future?

By the Light of the Silvery Moon

Lump of Clay Stirring

By BETTY CANARY

Here we are, folks, one month into the Soaring Seventies. Authorities tell us that drugs are still very much on the youth scene but, thankfully, young people are giving up unorganized searching for a never-never land and are ready to direct their energies toward realistic and worth-while goals. Air and water pollution are the targets.

Man, fresh from his assault on space, is now mobilizing to combat domestic problems. Once the Vietnam war is over, we are told, he will invest his time and money in efforts to conquer starvation, inequality and inhumanity to man on the home front.

Meanwhile, back at the kitchen range, a woman contemplates her role in the new decade.

Not being an ironclad cynic (she's not even a galvanized cynic), she is unwilling to admit that some would do anything to keep her at the stove, in the house, to play out her traditional role in the old, traditional way. But something rustles in her brain and she begins to wonder. She's not a cynic but, remember, she's no fool either. She has been reading all the latest stuff on how natural childbirth and breast-feeding are becoming more and more fashionable. She's not so simple-minded as to believe that the no-bra look indicates independence of thought, no matter what an occasional fashion designer or a random psychologist might try to sell her.

A slight queasiness develops when she looks at photographs of nature-lovers-cum-hippies snuggled down all cozy in their huts and tepees while a barefooted, bare-breasted mother-girl simpers, "We've come back to the basics, the naturalness of life."

She has heard all that before — in different dress, perhaps, but she has heard it before. Deep down inside, she hears the stirrings of her own conscience — something passed on, no doubt, from the grandmother who cut her hair and marched for the vote. And the woman asks herself if she's going to accept this sop-tossing for yet another 10 years.

She wonders if it isn't time to raise her voice. She isn't ready to be strident, along with the militants. And she's finished being sweet and syrupy to please those who tell her being a woman is being on hallowed ground and, if she just plays her cards right, canonization is just around the corner.

All she wants to know, really, is why can't she go around being human, setting her own goals and working toward them. Why, she asks, is it necessary to conform to the old idea of woman as occasional goddess, live-in moron, evening-time sex symbol, all-time nose wiper and part-time lump of clay?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lush Job at Development Bank

WASHINGTON — Operating behind the gleaming glass walls of his lavish Washington headquarters, President Felipe Herrera of the Inter-American Development Bank has become one of the most powerful men in the Western Hemisphere.

As the ruler of an institution that loans at least $600 million a year to Latin American countries to aid their development, he has enormous influence with the business and political leaders of the borrower nations.

Jack Anderson

But behind the prestigious facade of this international banking institution, this column has uncovered a tangle of haphazard lending practices, outright waste and attempts by the suave Herrera to use the bank to polish his personal image. Most of the misused money, of course, was bestowed upon the bank by the American taxpayers.

During Herrera's 10-year reign as the bank's first president, its funds have been put to uses never intended by the governments, which put up the money to stimulate economic development in Latin America. For example, Herrera used bank money to mortgage his swanky home in an exclusive Washington neighborhood.

The bank's funds have also been used to publish three slick editions of Herrera's long-winded speeches. And his deeds are prominently displayed in an impressive ream of costly bank newsletters, periodicals, and other publications. Indeed, the bank shelled out $269,000 last year on printing alone.

—Bootstrap Economist—

Although he holds no graduate degrees in economics and his theories are taken seriously few places outside the bank, Herrera travels far and wide to pontificate about them. In one case, the bank shelled out $7,000 to finance a frivolous three-day seminar in Mexico City where Herrera held forth at length about what might happen in Latin America in the next 33 years.

Because Herrera is absolute boss at the bank, little is accomplished during his frequent absences. This contributes to a frantic year-end rush to approve tens of millions in loans. In one year when Herrera's junkets were particularly numerous, approximately $140 million in loans were rammed through the board of directors in the final ten days of December.

When he is not publishing or traveling, Herrera finds other ways to fritter away the bank's resources. For instance, the bank's present headquarters in Washington is reliably estimated to be worth between $7.5 million and $8 million. Yet Herrera paid nearly $10 million for it five years ago, when it was worth even less.

Not satisfied with wasting several million dollars on the present headquarters, Herrera recently sought to purchase a fabulous new building which would have cost $35 million. Aside from the fat price, the deal would have required the bank to loan the builders $19 million, a transaction that would hardly have aided the development of Latin America. Last-minute U.S. objections headed off the deal.

—$40,000 Penthouse Suite—

Herrera has a plush suite of offices on the bank's 11th floor, but these became inadequate for his expensive tastes. So he rented and remodeled the penthouse of the office building next door, and ordered a special entrance constructed.

The new suite contains four dining rooms and a richly appointed office that, to the knowledge of bank employees, has never been used by anyone. The whole project cost at least $40,000 and left the bank with no more dining space than it had in its old dining quarters, which were remodeled for other uses.

More serious than the personal ways in which Herrera has thrown around the bank's money are the slipshod lending practices he has tolerated. These came to light in a confidential report, kept under wraps since it was written in 1968 by a prominent consultant hired by the bank.

The report found that:

— The bank staff did not carefully study the way companies applying for loans were operated and customarily made "unsubstantiated laudatory statements about borrower-management."

— The bank lacked "a loan information system sufficiently comprehensive to cover its needs."

—Working In Dark—

— The bank had no staff capable of making a proper market study, which is essential to consideration of any loan.

— Once the bank decided to study a loan application seriously, there was almost no chance the loan could be disapproved.

The result of these gross deficiencies, the report found, was that a high percentage of the bank's loans were spent on projects that failed or ran into serious trouble.

In the face of this ringing indictment, some reforms have been made at the bank, including the establishment of a more professional staff. But many of the criticisms in the report are still valid today.

NOTE: This column sought to reach Herrera for comment about his activities but he was off on another junket. A bank official said he was half-way between Europe and Venezuela and would not be back for a week.

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Let our storekeepers rub their windows twice a day with alcohol and it will keep them clear of frost. We give the advice but cannot possibly spare the alcohol ... Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q) On tax returns sent in now, about how long does it take to get a refund?

A) It normally takes 5-6 weeks if the return is accurate and complete. When a large volume of returns are received at the same time, such as near the April 15 filing deadline, it may take longer.

Taxpayers expecting a refund should have their check within 10 weeks from the time they filed or a letter explaining why it is delayed. For this reason, a taxpayer should wait 10 weeks before contacting IRS about a refund which has not been received.

Guam Doctrine Applies to World

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) It is simply incredible that at least two major eastern newspapers, one of them enormously prestigious, only now are discovering that President Nixon's self-proclaimed new foreign policy doctrine applies not just to Asia but the whole world.

One newspaper, in editorial comment on the President's State of the Union address, said flatly that the doctrine, first enunciated at Guam last July 25, was on this Jan. 22 "expanded" to embrace "each part of the world."

Evidently, the gentlemen who are writing this stuff never read what Nixon said at Guam six months ago. I quote from him then:

"I want to be sure that our policies in the future, all over the world, in Asia, Latin America, Africa and the rest, reduce American involvement."

That language is pretty plain, fitting even for editorialists and diplomatic correspondents, who have a tendency to be dazzled by their own gems of analysis.

Furthermore, the President made one or two other specific references to "other parts of the world" in his July 25 Guam utterances.

Since that date, any diligent inquiry within administration circles would have provided private confirmation that the President is indeed thinking of "lowering the U.S. profile" everywhere—and not least in Western Europe where we today have some 300,000 in armed forces on station under the NATO pact.

Nixon has scrupulously avoided any talk of cutting back on U.S. "commitments" abroad, in Asia, Europe or wherever. In a little-noticed Wisconsin speech, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird slipped once and spoke of trimming commitments. His office quickly applied a corrective.

For, beyond doubt, that is scare talk to nations which still place heavy reliance upon either a substantial U.S. presence or a strong American posture of assistance in maintaining their own security.

A thread of complete consistency runs through the President's statements on this issue, from Guam through State of the Union. In a State of the Union utterance which was a perfect echo of last July, he said:

"We shall be faithful to our treaty commitments, but we shall reduce our involvement and our presence in other nations' affairs."

The July 25 signal that we are changing our world role is clearly seen, but it is not made so much of as to frighten anybody into thinking we are "cutting out."

It is probably not by chance that the President, in all his declarations about reducing involvements everywhere, never before has used the word "Europe" specifically.

Our military manpower involvement there (that 300,000) is the largest anywhere outside Vietnam. Nixon, having sounded out European leaders in his 1969 winter visit, knows that any talk of truly massive manpower reductions by us would send the continent into shudders

The inside word, nevertheless, is that we are going to undertake a sizable cutback in our European force levels, though most likely not before 1971. The intervening time is needed to prepare the NATO countries for the impending change.

If their leaders can read, they would have found some further signals in the State of the Union message:

"Today the great industrial nations of Europe . . . have a new sense of pride and dignity, and a determination to assume the responsibility for their own defense.

"That is the basis of the doctrine I announced at Gaum . . .

"The nations of each part of the world should assume the primary responsibility for their own well-being . . ."

Nixon is telling Europe to get ready to bear a bigger share of its own defense load. Without mentioning the pullout of a single U.S. soldier, he is telling our Western allies—as plainly as can be done without dates and numbers of men—that a withdrawal will be coming.

Give the cards every chance and they will respond often enough to make you a winning player, provided you don't expect too much from them.

South's six-spade contract would have been a lead pipe cinch with any lead but a diamond. Unfortunately it is only in Utopia that your opponents fail to make the killing lead against slam contracts and West opened a diamond.

South won the trick and drew trumps with two leads. He stopped in his own hand in order to consider his next play. A successful club finesse would give him his contract with an overtrick since he would be able to make all the tricks. A successful heart finesse would allow a diamond discard and insure his contract. It would also leave the club finesse in reserve as a play for seven provided that the heart finesse worked.

If you have looked at the East and West hands or just at one of them, you will have seen that neither finesse is going to work. You will also have noted that the king of clubs is sitting high and dry in the East hand.

All South has to do to make all the tricks is to rise with dummy's ace of clubs and pickle that singleton king. What is more, South should do exactly that in a rubber bridge game.

He should start by leading the queen of clubs from his own hand. Maybe West would cover with some combination headed by the king, in line with the old rule of "Cover an honor with an honor."

West can't cover and doesn't but the ace of clubs play gives South an extra chance for his contract at the risk of a mere 100 points. The reason is that if the king doesn't drop South comes back to his hand and tries the heart finesse.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Why is the compass plant so called?

A—Because the leaf stalks bend so that the leaves usually point in a north-south direction.

Q—What woman sculptor made a group of 101 figures showing the races of man?

A—Malvina Hoffman. The collection is in the Hall of Man of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Seek Causative Factor For Shortness of Breath

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — I have been short of breath for a year. What could cause this? I have been taking Vistaril for it. Is this the best treatment?

A — Shortness of breath has many causes, chief among which are asthma, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, tuberculosis, spontaneous collapse of the lung, congestive heart failure and severe nervous tension. The treatment would depend on the cause. Vistaril is a tranquilizer.

Q — I had a bout of congestive heart failure a year ago. My doctor says Peritrate is old-fashioned. What do you think? He is giving me Metamine. How long will I have to take this drug?

A — Although Metamine is one of the newer drugs for angina pectoris, Peritrate is still effective and is widely used. If you have angina pectoris, you should take the Metamine as often and as long as needed. Neither of these drugs is given for congestive heart failure.

Q — I am a woman, 60. My chest X ray showed a calcium deposit near one of my heart valves. What causes this? Do dairy products and other foods make this condition worse? Would distilled water and lots of lemonade prevent it from getting worse?

A — The calcium deposits may be in part the result of a previous infection, such as rheumatic fever, and in part an accompaniment of age. Although milk contains calcium, it does not aggravate this disease — but cream and other animal fats or a large intake of sugar might. Save the distilled water for your car battery. Neither this nor the lemonade will dissolve or prevent the calcium deposits.

Q — I have an enlarged heart. What is the cause? Is it serious? What are the symptoms? Can it be cured?

A — This is usually caused by rheumatic heart disease or chronic high blood pressure. How serious it is depends on the extent to which your heart function is impaired. Such impairment would cause shortness of breath on exertion and waterlogging, especially in your ankles. The condition cannot be cured, but with appropriate treatment it can often be controlled.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Plastic Bread Bags Are Emergency Boots

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Emergency boots for children playing in the snow can be made by using plastic bread bags. To make them more durable and not as slippery on the bottom, pull old stretchy nylon hose over the bags. Make mittens somewhat the same way by first covering the hands with warm socks, then with smaller plastic bags and pulling the nylons on and up as far as they will reach over their coat sleeves. This helps eliminate the nuisance of snow getting up sleeves and pants legs.

Expedite the drying of mittens and gloves which cannot go into the dryer by grasping the two ends of a wire coat hanger and squeezing as you force the ends upward. Invert mittens over these ends and hang in a warm place to dry.—MRS. J. E. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—We want to get a dog but cannot figure out a way for one to get in and out alone. Our only wood door is the front door. In our former home we just cut a small square out of a door, replaced the piece with hinges and the dog could come and go at will. Our present home is joined to the neighbor's with a common wall so all doors and windows are to the front and back and other doors are sliding glass ones. Does anyone know of a way to make a "dog entrance" with sliding glass doors?—LAVERNE

DEAR POLLY—In answer to Deloris' problem of cleaning mud off her white satin shoes, I suggest that she remove the dry mud very carefully and then sponge with cleaning fluid. Be sure all the loose dirt is off. When they are clean, dye them with white shoe dye and they will look like new.—MRS. M. E.

DEAR POLLY—An elderly person in our home was sick for about three months and she had difficulty drinking from a glass. We solved the problem by using a small jar with a hole in the lid just large enough for a straw to go through it. This worked for milk, water, juices and any liquids. The lid must fit tightly so the liquid does not leak. Cartons that milk shakes come in also work but, of course, do not last for long.—RUTH

Roadrunners Find Frosh Tough Monday, 78-55

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

COLUMBIA — The question is still unanswered: How do you stop John Brown?

Monday night the State Fair Community College Roadrunners got their chance to try their hand at stopping the 6'7" freshman pivot man for the University of Missouri freshmen in Columbia's Brewer Field House, but with little success.

After getting off to a very slow start, the Roadrunners were never able to recover as the Baby Bengals posted their seventh win in as many outings by a count of 78-55.

The Roadrunners jumped out to a 2-0 lead, but it was short lived and the freshmen took control at the 17:05 mark of the first half, 4-3 and were never headed from that point.

The Roadrunners used what is known as the "Missouri Offense" in the early going of the game and coupled to it a man to man defense.

Neither strategy paid off for State Fair Coach Fred Wehking as the locals were unable to work the ball inside for the shots.

John Brown, although not as sharp in Monday night's appearance as he has been in earlier outings, was there to knock the passes away that were aimed at the inside.

Likewise, the man to man defense proved to be of little success and the yearling Tigers had mounted a lead of 27-9 by the 5:33 mark of the initial half.

The first half closed with State Fair on the short end of a 44-19 score.

Things in the second half changed somewhat and the Roadrunners were able to draw a close 55-33 early in the second half.

The second half scoring went in favor of the visiting Roadrunners, but only by two points, 34, compared to the Tigers 36.

For the most part, the two teams matched baskets throughout the second half, leaving the Roadrunners on the short end of a 78-55 score.

Brown led all scorers with 25; three other Mizzou freshmen netted in double figures; Jim Wienstroer had 12, while Bill Foster and Orv Salmon tossed in ten each.

For the Roadrunners, John Nelson paced the State Fair scoring with 14. He was the only visiting player to hit in double figures.

Thursday night State Fair travels to Lexington to tangle with the cadets of Wentworth Military Academy.

Four Added To Gridders Hall of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — "This is it. There are no more touchdowns to be made."

Hurrying Hugh McElhenny spoke for himself, Tom Fears, Pete Pihos and Jack Christianson, contemporary standouts in pro football's booming '50s, after the announcement Monday of their selection to the Professional Football Hall of Fame.

McElhenny, a breakaway ball-carrier for 13 pro seasons with San Francisco, Minnesota, New York and Detroit; Fears and Phios, premier pass receivers for the Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia Eagles, respectively, and Christianson, a gifted defensive back for the Lions, reacted alike—with pride and humility—to the coveted honor.

"I'm thrilled to death," said Fears, coach of the New Orleans Saints. "It's a great honor and I think its the epitome of professional football. I'm really flabbergasted to be put up there with some of the immortals of pro football."

"It was such a shock, but it made me feel wonderful," said Pihos, a Richmond, Va., business executive who played offense and defense for the Eagles through a good part of his eight-year career which began in 1947. "Hey, that's some kind of group—Christianson, Fears and McElhenney were three really great football players."

"This is the ultimate for a pro football player," added McElhenny, who lives in Los Altos, Calif., and works as a radio broadcaster at San Francisco games. "It goes to prove to me that football was awful good to me. This honor bestowed on me relates to all the fine ball players I played with from high school on up to the pros."

"I think everybody that plays would like to think he has an opportunity to get into the Hall of Fame," said Christianson, who was the 49ers' head coach for five years and is now on the Stanford University coaching staff. "I'm proud and honored that people thought enough of me to nominate me and I'm grateful to the sports writers who voted for me."

The four former stars were selected by a board of writers from the pro football cities at a meeting in New Orleans Jan. 12.

Owens Unhappy After Win; Tigers Bomb Colorado, 90-73

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Count Ted Owens among those pushing for a 30-second rule to eliminate stalling in college basketball.

The Kansas coach watched nervously Monday night while Oklahoma's discipline-weakened Sooners played keepaway from his Jayhawks for the first 15 minutes of their Big Eight Conference game at Lawrence, Kan.

Kansas exploded for 14 points in a three-minute span late in the first half and went on to riddle the Sooners, 78-41, but that didn't soothe Owens' ruffled feathers over the slowdown tactics.

After congratulating Oklahoma Coach John MacLeod on "good strategy" because the Sooners were playing without three players benched for breaking team curfew, Owens talked of the threat to college basketball.

"If every game was played like that," Owens said, "you wouldn't get anybody to watch . . . If we had sunk back into a zone defense, Oklahoma could have held the ball all night."

Owens said he plans to push for adoption of a rule to force the offensive team to shoot within 30 seconds.

While Kansas escaped Oklahoma's upset plan to raise its Big Eight record to 3-2 and remain in the thick of things, Kansas State held solid control of first place, whipping Iowa State 82-64 for the Wildcats' sixth conference victory without defeat.

Missouri also remained on the Wildcats' trail with a 4-2 league record and just about finished Colorado's hopes for a repeat championship, beating the Buffaloes, 90-73.

Oklahoma State toppled Nebraska, 81-58, leaving the Cornhuskers with a 2-3 Big Eight record.

It was the last Big Eight action until Saturday, when Oklahoma State, 2-4, is at Oklahoma, 1-4, in the afternoon television game, while Kansas State goes to Colorado, 2-4, Missouri to Iowa State, 3-4, and Kansas to Nebraska at night.

Dave Robisch ignited Kansas' run of 14 straight points and went on to collect 26 points, while Kansas doubled the score on the Sooners at one point, 78-39. Cliff Ray led Oklahoma, which was without Garfield Heard, Harry Brown and Vester Marshall, with 12.

Kansas State led Iowa State virtually all the way. David Hall topped the Wildcats with 16 points. Bill Cain of the Cyclones took game honors with 18.

Missouri, rebounding from a one-point loss at Kansas State Saturday, spotted Colorado a 12-4 lead, then roared back. Colorado's Cliff Meely and Jim Creighton both fouled out in the final 5½ minutes. Henry Smith got 28 points and Don Tomlinson 25 for Missouri, while Mike Coleman topped Colorado with 20.

Oklahoma State got a 10-point lead over Nebraska with 16 minutes left, went into Henry Iba's patented delay game and cashed 18 free throws on one-and-one situations to trounce the Huskers.

Tigers Host Jeff City

The Smith-Cotton Tigers, winless in two conference outings against Hannibal and Columbia Hickman, take on another Central Missouri Conference foe tonight in the Jefferson City Jays.

The game originally scheduled for Jan. 10 in the S-C gym, had to be postponed due to the slick roads.

The Tigers, hot off their first place finish in the annual Clinton Tournament Saturday night with a 59-53 win over the Knob Noster Panthers, hold a season's mark of 10-5 overall for Coach Jim Dinsdale's initial year at S-C.

The game tonight will pit the two rival foes of the CEMO conference in their first meeting of the year.

Jefferson City is led by hot-shooting Bob Holliway with a 25-point per game average. He is the only Jays' player hitting in double figures.

Other Jefferson City standouts, slated to see a lot of action include Nelson Bultman, Sam Cook, Ken Nicklas and Robin Glover.

In their last outing of the season, Jefferson City dropped a 58-56 decision to Paseo High School of Kansas City Saturday night in the Capital City.

Smith-Cotton starters may include Bob Logan and Chip Thompson or Steve Gerlecz at guards; Steve Herzberg and Jim Lewis at front line spots and either John Knapp or Gary Pirtle on the post.

For the season, the Jefferson City quintet has pointed a 9-7 mark and are currently standing at 2-1 in Central Missouri Conference action.

Included in S-C 10-5 record, is a 0-2 conference slate.

Travelers Add Win at Stover

STOVER — The Sedalia Travelers basketball team warmed up for the Warsaw Invitational Tournament Saturday night by bombing Stover on the road, 131-63.

The Travelers will take on Climax Springs Tuesday night in an opening round game of the Warsaw affair.

Late Points Net Victory For Locals

SMITHTON — The Sedalia Possum Trotters and the Smithton town team battled it out in a close game for three and one-half quarters Saturday, before the locals could put on a late splurge and bring back a 108-98 win.

The lead see-sawed throughout, but late game hot shooting by Gary Jackson and Al Emerson enabled the Trotters to notch the victory.

Sherdel Lewis led the scoring for the Possum Trotters with 22. Four other Trotters hit in double figures: E. T. Sims netted 20, Enos Johnson tossed in 18 and Jackson and Emerson added 16 each.

The Trotters are currently playing in the Warsaw Invitational Tournament.

They will host the Kansas City Chiefs cage team at the S-C gym on Feb. 26.

Pete Brown Takes Over Money Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Brown, winner of the Andy Williams San Diego Open last weekend, has moved into the lead of golf's top 10 money-winners, the PGA Tournament Players Division announced today.

Brown who was 35 Monday, has won $31,641 for the year including Sunday's winning purse of $30,000. Bert Yancey is runnerup with $26,052 for four events and Jack Nicklaus ranks third with $25,966.

Billy Casper is next at $21,935 while Dale Douglass rounds out the top five with $21,016. Howie Johnson follows with $18,572, then come Tony Jacklin, $17,630; Dave Hill, $15,905; Tom Weiskopf, $14,072, and Bobb Lunn, $13,238.

Leeton, Smithton Advance

SMITHTON — In the opening night of the annual Smithton Tournament, top-seeded Leeton and host team Smithton posted wins.

Leeton downed Northwest of Hughesville, 79-55, behind the 22 point production of Jon Armstrong.

Smithton topped Sweet Springs, 75-52.

David Bancroft added 14 points for the Bulldogs in the opening contest; Mike Wagner and Mike Curry were tops for the losing Mustangs; They tossed in 16 and 14 respectively.

Brent Hampy led the way for host Smithton with 19 points. Teammate Dwight Dewitt added 15.

Randy Bredehoeft tossed in 18 for game scoring honors for Sweet Springs.

Action continues tonight when Calhoun goes against LaMonte at 7 p.m. and second-seeded Sacred Heart tips off against Green Ridge at 8:30 p.m.

S-C Teams Split Jeff City Games

By MIKE KEHL

Smith-Cotton's Freshmen basketball teams split their games with Jefferson City Monday night on the home court. The "A" team lost 52-34 and the "B" team won 36-28. The "A" team now stands at 4-5 for the season and the "B" team is 7-1.

The Jays broke open a close game in the second quarter of the "A" contest outscoring the Tigers 18-7 to take a 30-16 halftime lead. It was 41-26 after three quarters.

Jefferson City won the game from the field as they sank 20 fields goals to the Tiger's 11. Both teams scored 12 times from the charity line.

Warren Robinson led Tiger scorers with 14 points followed by John Butler with 12. Butler and Kim Anderson pulled down 12 rebounds.

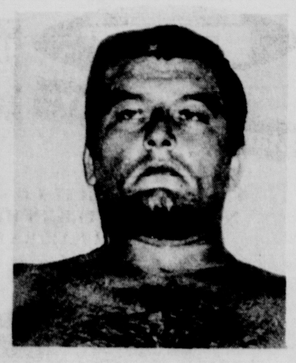
Both "B" teams had a cold first quarter with the score 3-2 in favor of the Tigers after one period. The Jays moved on top by one at halftime, 11-10. The Tigers came back with 13 points in each of the last two quarters to pick up the victory. The Jays could hit only 8 of 24 free throws for 33 percent while the Tigers sank 6 of 9 for 67 percent.

Jim Estes scored 12 points lead the Tigers. Kenny Cole had 8 and C. E. Baldwin had 5. Estes was also leading rebounder with 8 followed by Tom Gray with 7.

Both teams will see action again this Monday night against Boonville in games to be played on the opponent's court.

Seeks Mat Revenge In Wrestling Action

The Viking



K. O. Cox

Tommy Martin will have his opportunity to settle a score with hard-hitting Nature Boy Kirby when the two heavyweights meet in Convention Hall wrestling action tonight.

Their pairing, scheduled under "death match" provisions, will top a four-match program slated to get under way at 8:15.

The rules, or lack of them, provide that the clash be to a finish, that falls don't count, that there be no time limit and no disqualification. Action must continue until one man can no longer answer the bell.

Martin is eager to repay Kirby for an attack by him last week after Tommy had won the match. "It won't happen again, because I don't intend to turn my back on him," he vowed.

Rick Renaldo, a 232-pounder from Gold Hill, Ore., will make his area debut in the semifinal when he tackles talented Bobby Shane, a 23-year-old from St. Louis. Shane is back in the Midlands to campaign for the Central States title and considers himself in the peak of condition and at the top of his wrestling skills.

In what promises to be an all-out slugfest from starting bell to finish, the Viking will collide with K. O. Cox. Neither has a strong fan following and it's likely ringsiders will applaud the pair's efforts to batter each other.

Ronnie Etchison, who last week lost a questionable decision to Danny Little Bear, will try his hand against rugged Bobby Paul in the opening event.

Race is Stalemated Until February 13th

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

The Kaysinger Conference race will remain the same until the loop's meeting between Sacred Heart and Warsaw, Feb. 13; and as luck would have it, that 13 falls on a Friday.

That is the next date when conference competition resumes.

On that "Black Friday" one of those two teams will be virtually eliminated for the conference title race.

Between now and Feb. 13, the leagues teams will be playing in tournaments and in non-conference outings.

Lincoln, Sacred Heart and Warsaw are all knotted at 5-1 in Kaysinger Conference competition, but close behind is LaMonte at 4-2 and Cole Camp 3-2.

The Cole Camp Blue Birds pulled off the upset of the season to date in the league Friday night when they hosted and upset the Cardinals of Lincoln, 63-59.

Coupled with Friday night wins by Sacred Heart over Northwest of Hughesville, 66-49 and a 67-54 win by Warsaw over Stover, the league race tightened.

The conference race for the girls volleyball crown also drew closer to a photo-finish between two squads.

Smithton, who was already standing at 6-0 in volleyball competition in the loop now shares the league lead with Stover, who won over Warsaw Friday night.

At this rate, the two teams will meet in the final game of the year on Feb. 20 at Stover.

The Bulldog girls will play host to only Sacred Heart on Feb. 17, while Smithton has one remaining conference contest with Northwest on Feb. 13.

Stover has already posted wins over Smithton in a non-league game and in the Conference Tournament, earlier in the year.

The volleyball teams from Warsaw and Cole Camp are next in line in the standings at 4-2 and 3-3 respectively.

In the all important basketball race, each of the three top teams have two games remaining on their schedules.

This makes the conference meeting between Sacred Heart and Warsaw on Feb. 13 the most important of all.

Unfortunately for Sacred Heart, who has won six of seven home games this season, the Warsaw contest will be played in the new Warsaw gym.

Sacred Heart's other loop game will also be a road contest, Feb. 17 at Stover.

For the Warsaw Wildcats, their remaining conference game will be held on Feb. 20 with Cole Camp on the 'Cats home court.

In that game, Coach Bob Farrington's Blue Birds will have a chance to play the part of the "conference spolier" again.

Lincoln's two league contests include a road game with Green Ridge on Feb. 13 and a home tilt with LaMonte on Feb. 20.

Maravich Pushes His Mark

. By HERSCHEL NISSENSON .
Associated Press Sports Writer

The M Boys combined for 68 points Monday night. Louisiana State's Pete Maravich had 49 of them and became the first major college basketball player to score 3,000 in a career, but Penn was happy to have Bob Morse's 15 and Kentucky was just wild about Terry Mills' four.

Maravich, who shattered Oscar Robertson's major college career mark Saturday night, boosted his total to 3,036 as LSU whipped Mississippi State 109-91. En route, he also passed one of the six small college players ahead of him—Bennie Swain of Texas Southern, who had 3,008.

Before he's through, Maravich, who has 12 regular season games left, should eclipse everyone but Grambling's Bob Hopkins, who amassed 3,759 in a four-year career.

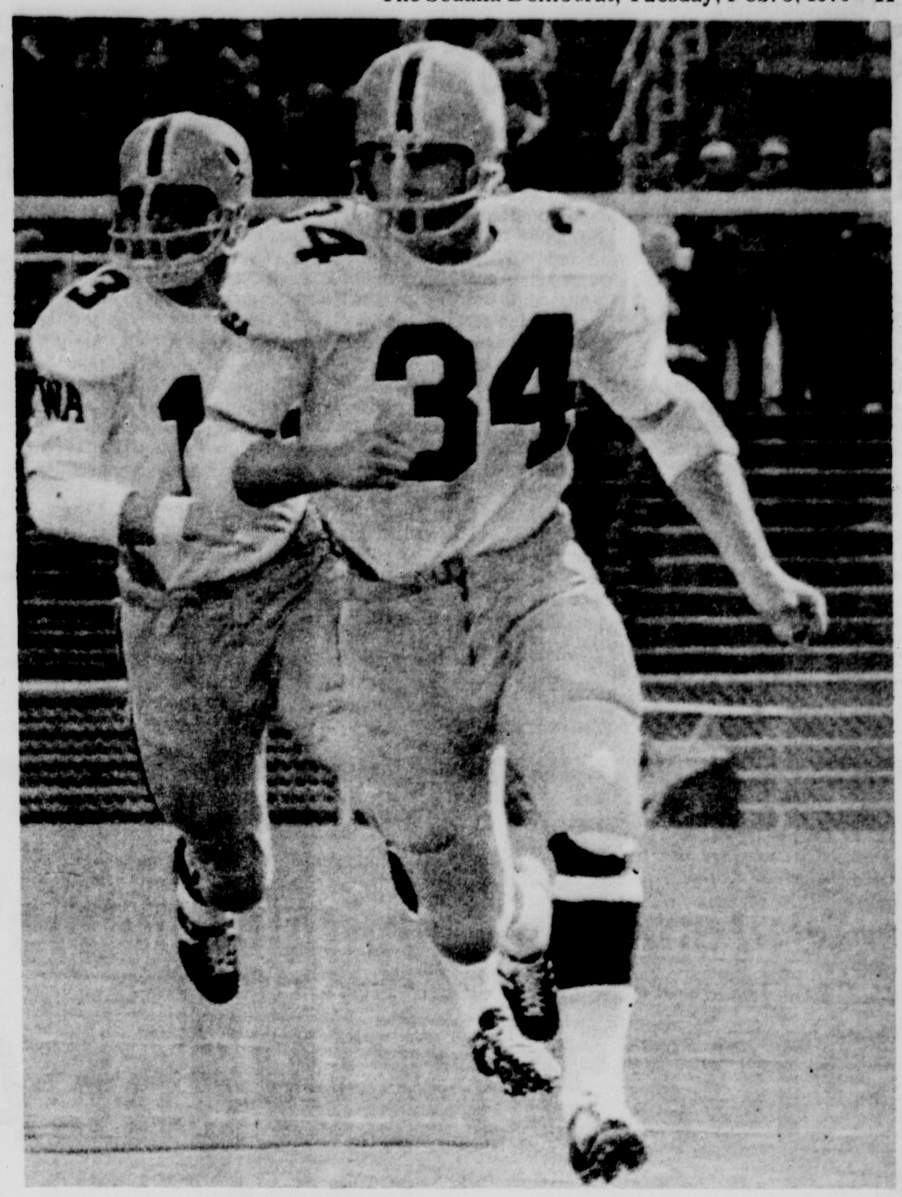
Mills popped in a 25-foot shot with 11 seconds left to give Kentucky an 84-83 victory over Auburn and move the Wildcats into a tie with Georgia for first place in the Southeastern Conference. The third-ranked Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday against Vanderbilt.

Penn, which jumped from 14th to 10th in this week's Associated Press poll, had just blown a 12-point lead in the closing minutes and trailed 17th-ranked Columbia by a point when Morse sank two free throws and added a corner jump shot a minute later to help the Quakers to a 57-52 triumph. They also broke a tie with Columbia for the Ivy League lead.

The only other ranking teams in action were No. 8 Jacksonville, which walloped Iona 110-75, and Kansas State, No. 18, which remained in the Big Eight driver's seat with a 82-64 trouncing of Iowa State.

Artis Gilmore's 29 points and 26 rebounds fired Jacksonville past the century mark for the 12th time in 16 starts and Kansas State took advantage of two six-minute cold spells by Iowa State to down the Cyclones, who missed their first 11 shots of the second half.

In other SEC play, Tennessee outlasted Vanderbilt 77-72 in double overtime and Alabama bumped Mississippi 95-87. In the Big Eight, Kansas thumped Oklahoma 71-48, Missouri whipped Colorado 90-73 and Oklahoma State crushed Nebraska 81-58.



Quit School at Iowa

It was learned Monday that the University of Iowa's starting quarterback Larry Lawrence (rear) and fullback Tom Smith (34) are not enrolled at the university for the second semester. Smith is shown in this picture blocking for Lawrence in the Iowa-Wisconsin game this past season. Word has it that they plan to enroll at the University of Arizona. (UPI)

Looking on are Yanks' manager Ralph Houk (second from right) and Lee MacPhail, the general manager of the New York squad. With the addition of Ward to the roster, the Yankees hope to add more power to the batting lineup. (UPI)

Bruins Widen Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mighty UCLA, which ran its perfect record through 16 games last week while upset tremors rocked half a dozen other top teams, was the unanimous No. 1 choice today in The Associated Press' major college basketball poll.

UCLA, the nation's only unbeaten major power following the initial falls of Kentucky, St. Bonaventure and Jacksonville, received all 31 first place votes in the weekly ballot of sports writers and sportscasters across the country.

The Bruins remained firmly entrenched atop the pack with a total of 620 points after whipping California 87-72 Friday night and trashing Stanford 102-84 Saturday night. Once-beaten South Carolina won three games during the week and climbed from fourth place to the No. 2 spot, replacing Kentucky, with 534 points.

Kentucky, ambushed by Vanderbilt 89-81 Saturday, slipped to third position and St. Bonaventure, upended by Villanova 64-62 earlier in the week, dipped from No. 3 to No. 4. Jacksonville, sixth a week ago, fell to eighth following an 89-83 loss to Florida State.

New Mexico State, Marquette and Illinois also stumbled—and lost ground in the rankings. The Aggies, downed by Creighton 72-68, dropped from fifth to sixth; the Warriors, knocked off by Chicago Loyola 76-72, from seventh to ninth and the Illini, stunned by Notre Dame 86-83, from No. 10 to No. 14.

North Carolina State, which won twice, moved up from eighth to fifth; North Carolina jumped from ninth to seventh after winning its only regular start and Penn, a two-time winner, switched positions with Illinois.

Davidson, Houston and Ohio University, which headed the Second Ten in last week's balloting, took unexpected spins as well, the Wildcats bowing to Wake Forest 74-73, the Cougars to Utah State 91-84 and the Bobcats to Wisconsin 72-69.

The resulting realignment sent Southern California from 15th to the No. 11 spot, Florida State from 18th to 12th and Drake from 16th to 13th. Davidson dropped to No. 15, behind Illinois, followed by Houston, Columbia, Kansas State, Villanova, and Iowa.

Ohio U. lost its spot in the Top Twenty, with Villanova moving in from the unranked list.

AP Names Unitas Athlete of Decade

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Unitas, the precision passer who has gained 20 miles in the air since starting his career as a $6-a-game quarterback, was named Pro Football Athlete of the Decade today in a special poll taken by The Associated Press.

The Baltimore Colts' quarterback, the alltime leading passer in pro football history, easily outdistanced three other stars who have played significant roles in the sport's impact on the American scene in the 1960s —Bart Starr, Jimmy Brown, and Joe Namath.

Unitas received 223 votes from the sports writers and sportscasters participating in The AP poll. Starr, veteran Green Bay quarterback, was second with 124½. Brown, now retired, received 105 votes and Namath 71.

Unitas, whose career spans 14 years in which pro football has risen to take its place as the country's No. 1 sports spectacle, originally was picked off the sandlots by Baltimore after the club received a fan letter heralding his ability.

"I always accused Johnny of writing it," says Weeb Ewbank, the current coach of the New York Jets who was Unitas' coach at Baltimore. "Unitas was signed after a letter by a fan came to the club telling us there was a player he had seen deserving of a chance."

The Colts took a look—and the rest is history.

Unitas, a classic passer and brilliant field general who is the master of the audible called at the line of scrimmage, has attempted more passes (4,456), completed more passes (2,450), gained more yards (35,502) and thrown more touchdowns (266) than any other player in history.

The man who knows him best, his longtime No. 1 target, Ray Berry, explains Unitas the quarterback this way:

"I can tell you about his uncanny instinct for calling the right play at the right time, his icy composure under fire, his fierce competitiveness and his utter disregard for his own personal safety."

Unitas needed all those attributes in the 1958 championship game against the New York Giants—a game won by Baltimore in sudden death which since has been celebrated as a game that, because of its drama, attracted new fans to the sport.

The Colts trailed 17-14 with time running out in the fourth quarter when Unitas marshalled his troops at their own 14-yard line.

Berry vividly recalls that moment as the Colts went into the huddle and says Unitas just said matter-of-factly:

"We've got some 80 yards to go and two minutes to do it in. Now we find out what stuff we're made of."

Starr made his impact felt in Green Bay's glory days under Vince Lombardi while Brown still stands as the model for all heavy-duty running backs.

Welfare Group May Protest

ST. LOUIS (AP)—LIVE, an organization recently formed to effect changes in Missouri's welfare program, will conduct a statewide protest this spring if its demands are not implemented, a spokesman said Sunday.

The Rev. Buck Jones, a leader in last year's nine-month public housing rent strike, said the aim of LIVE's program is "to guarantee a humane standard of living for all needy persons."

Jones said he wrote Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Proctor Carter, director of the State Division of Welfare, listing the following of his organization:

1. That Missouri welfare payments coincide with the cost of living index.
2. That Missouri increase its share of non federal welfare costs to 70 per cent.
3. That aid to dependent children grants be increased 50 per cent and old age assistance grants 20 per cent.
4. That Missouri use a declaration statement to determine eligibility for financial assistance.
5. That a state welfare commission be established and its membership be at least one-third welfare recipients.
6. That vacancies existing in the offices of the Division of Welfare be filled by qualified welfare recipients.
7. That the Division of Welfare begin a massive program to create jobs which offer security and dignity for welfare recipients.
8. That the governor and the welfare director join in implementing all of the demands.

Jones said if the demands are not met, there would be "an aggressive statewide protest in March" that would affect even rural legislators. He declined to say what form such a protest might take.

Jones estimated that the program proposed by his group would cost the state an additional $15 million a year.

Change of Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — The High School Principals Association has done an about face and urged that the Pledge of Allegiance be continued in the city's 64 academic high schools.

On Jan. 22, the association urged that the pledge be discontinued because of confusion over its legal status, but Sunday it reversed itself on the recommendation of Herbert F. Johnson, the state deputy commissioner of education.

The confusion was prompted by students who recently have refused to recite the pledge because of personal beliefs.

Prominent Lawyer Dies in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Preston Estep, a lawyer and businessman called the driving force behind downtown redevelopment in St. Louis, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack at his home. He was 55.

At the time of his death, Estep was chairman of the board for the Bank of St. Louis, the Transit Casualty Insurance Co., and Bancshares Corp.

He established the insurance company from holdings in two bus companies. Bancshares' assets in 1966 were listed at more than $500 million.

Eventual formation of the Bi-State Development Agency by the legislatures of Illinois and Missouri came from Estep's work and lobbying in behalf of St. Louis' first downtown renewal project.

Prior to his arrival in St. Louis in 1945, he worked in the Missouri State Division of Insurance. He was a native of Taney County near the Arkansas border and later lived at Bolivar.

Little Progress Shown In School Desegregation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Little progress toward the school desegregation ordered by the Supreme Court developed Monday in much of the Southern area affected.

Schools in five Florida counties closed while teachers were being transferred to effect faculty integration.

Two schools in Alabama were closed by bomb threats, but no explosives were found.

In Alabama, where 140,000 pupils are involved in four school districts, only a few white children assigned to schools where blacks were in the majority showed up for classes.

In Louisiana, four districts opened on schedule trying to meet the integration deadline. In one, Winn Parish, white mothers cruised the streets of Winnfield urging white parents to keep their children out of the newly integrated schools.

In Mississippi, two school districts—Indianola and Tunica—had turned all black, with white pupils and teachers flocking to private schools.

Jefferson County, Ala., was the only one of the four involved districts in that state which attempted to integrate schools. The others—Mobile, Bessemer and Fairfield—took no action.

Meanwhile, a suit by Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia which seeks to have the federal government either enforce uniform school desegregation guidelines throughout the United States or allow freedom of choice in the South was before a Washington District Court.

Maddox was joined in the suit by the State of Georgia, the Georgia Board of Education and several other plaintiffs.

The Supreme Court already has thrown out attempts by Govs. Claude Kirk of Florida, John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Albert Brewer of Alabama to halt the massive school desegregation in the South.

Sheriff Denies Charges

EAST PRAIRIE, Mo. (AP) — The sheriff of Mississippi County denies he is harassing signers of petitions calling for a referendum on the state income tax.

Sheriff Pedro Simmons discounted the charge Monday night by state Rep. Richard M. Marshall, R-Webster Groves.

Marshall said the sheriff was going around with a notary to get signers of the petition to sign an affidavit saying they wanted their names removed from the petition.

"It's a conspiracy to deprive these people of their rights to sign a petition," said Marshall, a supporter of the drive to have the tax submitted to voters.

"I'll take care of the sheriff's office and let him take care of his office," Simmons said. "Nobody's being harassed down here. I'm an officer of the court."

Simmons said some persons were checking petition signatures and it was found that some of the circulators did not actually witness persons signing the petitions. "Also there were some duplicate names and cases where wives signed for husbands," the sheriff said.

Mrs. Goldie Benson said the sheriff told her she might get into "fierce trouble," because of her having circulated petitions. She quoted him as saying: "We'll get you for perjury."

Simmons denied it. He said he did warn Mrs. Benson that someone might file suit and she might be asked in court: "Did you certify these petitions."

Warrant Issued For Plane Theft

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — A warrant was issued Monday for a man police say was involved in the theft of a twin-engine plane from the Kennett airport but both the plane and the man were not to be found.

Named in the warrant issued by Dunklin County authorities was Michael P. Alexander, about 25, of Blytheville, Ark.

Kennett Police Chief Ed Fuller said Alexander's car was found abandoned on a side road near the airport.

*With trade-in tire off your car. Whitewalls $3 more each.

Can your tires keep pace with modern freeway and turnpike driving? If there's any doubt, then Wards HST is the tire you should be driving on. Its wide tread supplies greater traction, improved handling at any speed. Rugged 4-ply nylon cord body fights impact and moisture damage; reduces dangerous heat buildup. With Wards full 36-month guarantee against tread wear-out.

FAST FREE MOUNTING WHILE YOU SHOP AT WARDS

WARDS RIVERSIDE 4-SQUARE PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE

GUARANTEED AGAINST FAILURE due to road hazards (except repairable punctures) or from defects in materials or workmanship for the life of the original tread. In case of failure, Wards will exchange tire for a new one, charging only that portion of the current regular price (plus Federal Excise Tax) equivalent to the percent of tread used.

GUARANTEED AGAINST TREAD WEAROUT for months specified or for miles specified. In case tread wears out, Wards will exchange tire for a new one, charging only the difference between the current regular price (plus Federal Excise Tax) and a specific dollar allowance. (Tread wear guarantee does not apply to tires used commercially.)

NATIONWIDE SERVICE. Guarantee honored at any Wards Retail or Catalog store upon presentation of guarantee card.

THE PENNEY STORY

"The best darn values in the country"

By ROBERTA NASH

My first job, when I came to Penney's, was to learn about the company by talking with its people. My notes contain the things they said. I wish it were as easy to describe the people.

My frustrated typewriter writes words like pride . . . honor . . . dedication . . . esprit de corps . . . enthusiasm.

That last word sends me back to my notes. A store manager who said, "You'll find we're quite a bunch. The thing we have in common is our enthusiasm—to give the public the best darn values in the country." (Only he used a more enthusiastic word than darn.)
